

Panamanian voters giving canal treaties overwhelming approval

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — A big turnout of Panamanian voters gave the new Panama Canal treaties overwhelming approval, unofficial returns from the nationwide referendum showed today.

The election tribunal reported 149,178 yes votes to 76,311 no votes cast Sunday in 910 of the 3,038 voting districts. This was nearly 30 per cent of the estimated 800,000 eligible voters.

Election officials said most of these votes were cast in Panama province, including Panama City, the seat of much of the opposition to the treaties. Government officials predicted returns from the provinces would raise the total in favor of the pacts to 70 or 75 per cent.

The final official count is to be announced Thursday.

Panama's chief of government, Gen. Omar Torrijos, predicted the U.S. Senate would also ratify the treaties despite the strong opposition in the United States.

Torrijos said the senators must realize the treaties "go beyond their electoral districts. They're playing with the luck of maritime navigation all over the world."

"It's the senators who have to explain to the people, not the people who have to explain to the senators," he added in an interview.

Torrijos voted in the morning and then toured Panama City in a military truck loaded with reporters. Cheering crowds welcomed him everywhere, and his shirt collar was red with lipstick by the time he returned home.

There were no reports of opposition activity during the voting Sunday. A number of rallies had been held the week before, and opponents of the treaties claimed the plebiscite was fixed. Torrijos denied the charge, and invited three dozen foreign observers to check on the voting.

Everyone 18 and over was eligible to vote. Those voting were fingerprinted, required to present identification cards which were punched, and their thumbs were inked.

The tribunal said the voter turnout was massive, and that there were no confirmed reports of voting irregularities or violence. But a U.S. television network filmed one man, Juan Carlo Voloj Perera, who said he voted twice and then informed election officials to prove that fraud was possible. A spokesman for the election tribunal said the incident was being investigated.

The voters appeared to be in a happy holiday mood as they waited in line to vote.

"I've been waiting all my life, for 48 years, to walk to this plebiscite," said Torrijos as he approached his polling place with his wife and four children. "I've always been very certain about how this would end up. I've never been insecure."

The main treaty, one of two signed in Washington Sept.

7 by Torrijos and President Carter, provides for the United States to surrender the canal and the 500-square-mile canal zone to Panama by the year 2000. The second document declares the waterway a neutral zone and allows U.S. intervention in the event of a threat to its security.

Torrijos and his government waged a strong campaign in favor of the treaties, but opponents were encouraged to speak out. It was the first time since he took over the government in a 1968 coup that a political issue in which there was any opposition to the government was debated publicly.

A 30-member Independent Lawyers Movement and leftist students led the opposition. They objected to the right of the United States to intervene militarily to defend the canal and also demanded that the United States give up the territory sooner.

Fear 3 dead as car plunges off cliff

One body's recovered; fog, rugged terrain hamper search for others

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

One person is dead and possibly two more bodies may be found in the tangled wreckage of a vehicle which plummeted 600 feet down a cliff on Highway 39, north of the Crystal Lake area, early Sunday evening.

Members of the San Dimas Sheriff's Mountain Rescue Squad and a sheriff's helicopter were hampered by fog this morning in the search for the accident victims and their vehicle.

A spokesman for the California Highway Patrol, which is also investigating the fatality, said that identification of the only victim found so far is impossible except through fingerprints.

He said that the vehicle after dropping 600 feet, hit a rock and disintegrated, with wreckage hurtling another 1,000 feet down into the canyon.

He said that the treacherous terrain was hampering efforts to locate possibly two other victims.

He said that three persons were seen in the vehicle when it stopped shortly before the 6:30 p.m. tragedy in the Crystal Springs area.

The accident occurred on Highway 39, 1 1/2 miles north of the Crystal Lake area.

Claremont man killed in military base blast; Cucamongan 'critical'

By BOB SWETNAM JR.
PB Staff Writer

A Cucamonga man who walked seven miles seeking help following an explosion at a military base in San Bernardino County Thursday is reported in critical condition today at the San Bernardino County Medical Center.

He is Ronald R. Smith, 28, of Cucamonga. A Claremont man, Robert Dale Howards, 41, died from injuries sustained in the blast.

Both were working at a "burn pit" in an isolated area at Ft. Irwin, a National Guard facility near Barstow when the explosion occurred, said sheriff's officers.

The men were working with highly volatile chemicals and explosives.

For an undetermined reason, the chemicals exploded, seriously burning the two workers and "disintegrating" the bodies of two vehicles.

"We really don't know what happened," said Sgt. Terry McDonald of the Barstow sheriff's station. "It (the chemicals) just went off on them."

McDonald said both men were able to walk after the blast, even though both suffered extensive burns.

They walked about two miles before Howard collapsed.

Smith continued to walk in search of help. He was later discovered by a search party dispatched from Ft. Irwin after the two men were reported missing.

The search party then found Howard. The Claremont man, however, died while being transported to a hospital.

Both men were employed by J. S. Brower and Associates, a Pomona chemical disposal firm.

J. S. Brower reported the two men were at Ft. Irwin on "official business" for the firm, but he did not immediately know the types of chemicals they had.

SAME SENSE OF HUMOR

Despite his long fight against cancer, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, right, has retained his keen sense of humor. Here his wife, Muriel, and President Carter enjoy a good laugh at something he said in Minneapolis Sunday before they flew to Washington, D.C.

Carter leads Veterans Day observance

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is leading the nation's Veterans Day observance by placing a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery.

Max Cleland, the head of the Veterans Administration, planned to accompany Carter to today's ceremony. Cleland lost both legs and an arm from a 1968 grenade explosion in Vietnam.

This is the last year the holiday will fall on different dates around the country. Next year all 50 states return to the traditional Nov. 11.

Forty-seven states have already gone back to that date.

Only Utah, Hawaii and Washington, D.C., are observing it today, while Rhode Island honors veterans Nov. 7. For most federal employees, the holiday is today.

The confusion began in 1968 when Congress moved several holidays from their traditional dates to Mondays to create more three-day weekends.

Since 1919 Veterans Day had been observed on Nov. 11. Beginning in 1971, the holiday, originally called Armistice Day, was switched to the fourth Monday in October.

Most veterans organizations vigorously protested the switch. Some, never acknowledging the change, have continued to hold their ceremonies on Nov. 11.

Two years ago, Congress voted to move the holiday back to Nov. 11, but delayed the change until 1978 to accommodate calendar manufacturers.

Various veterans groups planned to join in today's ceremony, which many military dignitaries planned to attend.

Playing host is the Military Order of the Purple Heart and its national commander, Douglas H. McGarrity. Veterans organizations take turns in this role.

The Rev. James Paul Carter, a much-decorated Vietnam era double amputee who serves as chaplain at the VA's Audie Murphy Hospital in San Antonio, Tex., was to give the invocation.

2 held in Oxnard slaying case; expect more arrests

OXNARD (AP) — Police say they are close to solving the mystery behind the murder-rape attack of an Oxnard couple, with two arrests over the weekend and several more expected in the next few days.

Two teenagers were arrested Saturday for investigation of murder in what Police Chief Robert Owens called "the most vicious and brutal crime in Oxnard history," the Oct. 15 ganglike attack on Paul Yenney, 17, and his girlfriend, Linda Feine, 18.

Yenney and Miss Feine were attacked as they walked home after a school event; Yenney was killed, and Miss Feine was beaten and raped. She is in critical condition at a local hospital.

A 17-year-old boy, whose name was withheld because of his age, was arrested at his home early Saturday, police said. Johnny C. Lopez, 18, was also picked up at his home later in the day. Both were booked for investigation of murder, police said.

Owens said further arrests — as many as seven altogether — may be expected "in a matter of days."

Police Sunday were continuing their vigil at St. John's Hospital, where Miss Feine remained in critical condition. Yenney, wearing his beloved Channel Islands High School band uniform, was buried last week.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president and the vice president of the United States stood back, all but ignored, while the senior senator from Minnesota waded into the welcoming crowd to shake hands.

Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale didn't seem to mind. The people and the smiles at Andrews Air Force Base on Sunday were for Hubert Horatio Humphrey, back in the capital for the first time since Aug. 18, when doctors determined his cancer was inoperable.

Getting back to work, Humphrey said, would be good therapy. And he said he was ready "to raise as much hell as I can."

Humphrey will walk into the Senate chamber at 2 p.m. Tuesday to be welcomed back by his colleagues. Carter said, "I figure we'll be ready to adjourn in about a week with Sen. Humphrey on the job."

The senator, 66, appeared gaunt and he walked with a halt. But the smile was as broad as ever.

Carter had stopped in Minneapolis as he returned from a 2 1/2-day cross-country tour to bring Humphrey to Washington aboard Air Force One.

"I am happy to report to you that I do feel so much better," Humphrey said. "Everything, of course, is relative. I'm not quite as good as I was when I was 50, but I am doing mighty good considering what we have been through. Getting back to Washington is going to be good therapy. That is what my doctors have told me."

Carter's praise for the man who failed three times to be elected president could hardly have been more effusive.

"This is one of the great days in my life to be able to come back to Minnesota to join with the greatest American that I know, the No. 1 Democrat in our country, and a man who has been admired and is admired throughout the world," the President said in Minneapolis.

More than 1,000 who had gathered to see Humphrey off cheered and a lot of eyes misted over.

"I know of no one who exemplifies what our nation stands for better than he," said Carter.

"If there is a retarded child in our country who hasn't been helped by Sen. Humphrey, I don't know about it. Every elderly person in our nation, every poor person in our nation, every black person in our nation, everyone who has come here from overseas who doesn't speak English well, everyone who lives in something of despair, knows that they have one staunch and undying friend in Sen. Hubert Humphrey."

When the plane landed in Washington, the President performed a little ceremony. As Humphrey and his wife watched, Carter signed a bill naming the new headquarters of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare the Hubert H. Humphrey Building.

Carter called it a "great honor for our government ..."

"It's a great honor for me, sir," the senator replied.

Carter handed Humphrey the pen he used to sign the bill. "This is for Muriel," said Humphrey, passing the pen to his wife.

Tequila and buffalo meat

Exotic sauces, secret ingredients stir hearts of 35,000 chili lovers

ROSAMOND (AP) — Some cooked with tequila and chocolate, others threw in raccoon or buffalo meat. Many followed family recipes handed down like heirlooms from generation to generation.

But the Las Vegas realtor who simmered up the winning concoction at the 11th World Championship Chili Cook-off was a rank amateur who simply stuck to basics.

"I have no secret ingredients," said Jay Pennington, who was crowned 1977 world chili champ Sunday before an overflow crowd of 35,000 chili buffs at the Tropicana gold mining camp, a Mojave Desert ghost town. "I use good meat and keep out the grease."

The award-winning batch of "Jay's Good Ol' Chili" was the sixth ever cooked by Pennington. His first won a Las Vegas Kiwanis chili cooking contest, and his second clinched him the Nevada state chili cooking championship.

Pennington, sponsored by the Circus Circus Hotel in Las Vegas and the Kawanis club, beat out more than 30 other state and several foreign champions, including 1976 winner Rufus Valdez, a full-blooded Ute from Albuquerque, N.M. who brought along 20 Indian dancers for moral support.

Valdez claimed his "Indian's Revenge" recipe included a pinch of chili grown from 2,000-year-old seeds.

The British consul general in Los Angeles, Tom Aston, turned out in a 10-gallon hat and cowboy outfit and was astonished to find his country represented by Jack "Blackie" Barber of Stockes England, who donned tails and top hat for the occasion.

"My God," Aston said, "I always thought the nearest thing we had at home was mulligatawny soup."

While his friend Joe Michaels looked on, 61-year-old R.S. "Red" Holmes of Stony Brook, N.Y. stirred the New York state pot.

"We were both pilots in the China theatre during World War II," Michaels said. "I came down with symptoms of Malaria. Red had me eat a pot of his chili and two days later I was completely cured."

Leo Wagner of the North Dakota claimed his team's "Roughrider chili" is so strong "it wakes up the dead."

"Roughrider Chili is what squared Teddy Roosevelt's teeth," said Wagner.

Master of ceremonies and chief judge at the International Chili Society culinary competition was C.V. Wood, himself a two-time world champion. He described chili as "the native nourishment of mankind — the dish of the people."

Other judges included actors William Conrad, Ernest Borgnine, Marty Allen, actress Joanne Dru, race car drivers Carroll Shelby and Bobby Unser and California Atty. General Evelle Younger.

Spectators paid $4 each to attend the event, whose proceeds will go to the Los Angeles Childrens Hospital.

Ford to decide in 1978 whether to run again

WHIPPANY, N.J. (AP) — Former President Gerald R. Ford says he will decide after the 1978 elections whether to seek the presidency in 1980.

Ford made his comment at a news conference Thursday while in New Jersey.

Female officer quells Riverside jail riot

RIVERSIDE (AP) — A female sergeant has calmly quelled a disturbance involving 25 Riverside County jail inmates who were protesting lost visiting privileges, authorities said.

Renee Shoemaker, 43, was serving as watch commander Saturday afternoon when the inmates set fire to blankets, books and newspapers, and broke sinks, faucets and pipes in six high-security cells, officials reported.

The 15-year veteran of the Riverside County sheriff's department said she calmed down the rioters by talking to them. She said she could not immediately reinstate their visiting privileges, but would review the matter. The privileges were taken away last week after several inmates threw plates and food.

"As soon as I went there, they stopped their actions," she said. "I told them there would be no further destruction."

"I was not afraid. There was sufficient personnel to handle anything."

The sergeant said no one was seriously injured in Saturday's disturbance. The riot caused about $1,000 damage.

Local officials attend homicide symposium

Local deputy district attorneys and law enforcement officers are expected to attend the California District Attorneys Association Second Annual National Homicide Symposium next week at the Sheraton-Universal Hotel in North Hollywood.

Representing the West Valley Deputy District Attorney's office at the event will be Deputy Dist. Atty. James Faust.

Speaking at the symposium will be Deputy Atty. Gen. Sanford Svetcov; Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley; Barbarland Sgt. Gerald McQueen of the New York Police Department; noted criminal psychiatrists and psychologists, pathologists, criminologists, defense attorneys, journalism professors, and county coroners.

Among the items to be discussed are: Anticipating and Countering Prosecution and Defense Experts; gathering evidence; criminalistics; forensic pathology and homicide; free press and gag orders; and prominent homicide cases.

The symposium will begin Wednesday with addresses by Mayor Bradley and Los Angeles District Atty. John Van de Camp. It will conclude Saturday.

$850,000 raised

Carter's Los Angeles visit a big financial success

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Carter was only in town for an overnight visit, but his short stay raised a record amount of money and prompted the gathering of nearly 2,500 protestors — many of them angry farmers in tractors — outside Carter's hotel.

Before Carter's appearance at a fund-raising dinner Saturday night at the Century Plaza Hotel, a score of tractors piloted from the dusty fields of the Imperial Valley ground over the pavement. Hundreds of farmers were dramatizing their protest of administration reclamation policies.

"I was going to go out and talk to them, but it got late and they had to leave the streets when I got here," Carter told reporters at the Century Plaza hotel. Press spokesman Jody Powell said the tractors, so far from their own element, had no running lights and dispersed when darkness came.

The businessmen from the fields were protesting Carter's support for a 160-acre limit on delivery of federal water to farms.

"Three-fourths of the land in the Imperial Valley (in extreme south-central California) is held in parcels larger than 160 acres," said Don Cox of Brawley. "Only 20 per cent can be farmed economically in small lots."

The $1,000-a-plate dinner attracted 650 supporters and set a state party fund-raising record, Powell said. Added to $196,000 raised in pre-dinner cocktail parties and other contributions, the total for the Democratic National Committee coffers was $850,000. Carter termed the affair a "very fine financial success."

Two dissimilar groups were protesting hours before the President arrived for the blacktie event at the hotel in a planned highrise neighborhood where many entertainment industry figures have offices or condominiums.

Police said they intervened quickly when a young woman identifying herself as a Jewish Defense League member spat on a leader of a pro-PLO group and threw a Palestinian flag, symbol of Arab protest of the Jewish state, on the ground. A couple of minor scuffles were reported but no arrests were made, authorities said.

Carter views Brown

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. would be a tough opponent if he runs again for the presidency, President Carter says.

But Carter added, "It's too early to predict 1980."

Carter was asked about Brown during a Democratic fund-raising dinner here Saturday night. The two men, who opposed each other in some of last year's primaries, sat together during the dinner entertainment.

"If I should run, he (Brown) would certainly be a formidable opponent," the President said. "I have nothing but friendship and respect for Jerry Brown."

Tear gas sales

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger says there are "problems" concerning the distribution of tear gas weapons for personal protection.

In a Sacramento Bee story Sunday, Younger said there are also indications that manufacturers of tear gas weapons "are reluctant to supply these weapons to citizens because of potential liability problems."

He was commenting on the law, in effect since July, to allow citizens to carry teargas weapons — once they've taken a training course and been screened by the Department of Justice Criminal Identification Division.

Radio murder tip

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Downey police say they have few clues in their search for a man who telephoned a radio news station with the location of a murdered woman.

The man, who identified himself as Mark Spencer Brooks, told KFWB radio editor John Mainelli in an early-morning phone call Saturday where to find a car containing the body of his ex-girlfriend, Sherry Johnson, 21.

Mainelli called Downey police, who found the body in the back seat.

Sgt. Jim Mann said Sunday that the woman "appears to have been strangled," probably early Saturday morning. He said the search was continuing, but added: "We have nothing new to go on."

Olympic watchdog group

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A city councilmen and an attorney say they are promoting a citizens watchdog committee to prevent the spending of tax money on the 1984 Olympic summer games if held in Los Angeles.

Councilman Ernani Bernardi and Peter Scott said in a television interview Saturday that they may also seek a city charter amendment prohibiting use of public funds for the games.

Mayor Tom Bradley and Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. already have said that little public money would be spent on the games. The mayor said the event would raise $66 million in television rights alone.

But Bernardi questioned Bradley's figure, saying Montreal lost $55,000 on its television deal in 1976.

The councilman also contended that local colleges and universities had insufficient space to house the nearly 1,300 athletes expected for the game.

Police release most Vietnamese demonstrators

FULLERTON (AP) — Police say they have released most of the 24 Vietnamese refugees arrested in an egg-throwing protest of a pro-North Vietnamese film at a university here.

The demonstrators were among a group of about 100 persons who threw eggs inside a California State University Fullerton building and at police officers Friday night. They were protesting the showing of the Cuban film, "Vietnam in the Year of the Cat."

A university professor who had organized the film's showing said many of the demonstrators had served in the South Vietnamese military.

Nineteen demonstrators, three of them juveniles, were arrested on misdemeanor charges of unlawful assembly and failure to disperse. All were released by Sunday with the agreement to appear in court on Oct. 31.

Five others were arrested by campus police and taken to Orange County Jail. Three were held in connection with felony battery on a police officer, disturbing the peace, unlawful assembly, and failure to disperse. The other two were released after being arrested for disturbing the peace, one of them also for public drunkenness.

Tarnished town polishes image

Turns tables on joke

WARSAW, N.C. (AP) — A Columbia, S.C., radio station tried to make this community of 2,700 the butt of a big-city joke, but a little small-town ingenuity rewrote the punchline.

The station, WIS, sponsored a contest in which the first prize was a trip to Warsaw. Second prize was a week for two in New Orleans. The station called it a "No Contest Contest."

In addition to the accommodations in a Warsaw motel, the prize included bus transportation via Turkey, N.C., which was to have been the original first prize destination, but the station found the bus wouldn't stop there.

Along with the bus tickets came a warm carton of milk, a cheese sandwich, a used pillow and an old magazine. Joe and Joy Wilson won the trip, and Wilson had to admit that at first blush he was disappointed not to have won second prize instead.

But residents of Warsaw didn't like what the contest had done to their town's image and decided it was up to them to make the Wilsons forget what might have been in New Orleans.

The Warsaw people told the Wilsons to tear up the bus tickets and instead sent Milford Quinn to pick them up Friday in his private airplane.

When they landed in Warsaw, the Wilsons were met at the airport by 200 cheering residents. Officials handed them certificates signed by Gov. Jim Hunt which made them "honorary Tar Heels."

Then the Wilsons went to their motel for more surprises.

"We walked into the motel and it was lined with flowers, buckets of champagne and baskets of fruit," said the amazed Wilson, 30, an installer for Western Electric. "That's really hard to describe."

After that there was a key to the city from Mayor Johnnie Powell, a "pig picking" barbecue in their honor and tours of Warsaw, Kenansville and even Turkey.

"We are a great little town," said Frances Steed, who gave a Saturday luncheon for the Wilsons. The contest, she said, was looked upon at first by townspeople as "a cruel, nasty joke."

But in the end, she said, the station "did us a big favor. Now people have heard of us and know a little more about us."

Solons tackle energy, social security Marcos arms civilians

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy and taxes dominate congressional action this week as the Senate takes up an energy tax bill, the House debates Social Security taxes and a conference committee works on a national energy policy.

While the rest of Congress planned to take the Veterans Day holiday off, the House-Senate energy conference committee was summoned to work by its chairman, Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., who said today's session was "in the national interest."

The 43-member panel made scant progress in three long sessions last week, agreeing only on a compromise requiring utilities to help consumers insulate their homes — one of the less controversial issues.

This week it will look at President Carter's proposal to force most utilities and industries burning oil and natural gas to convert to coal.

The House passed the President's program, but the Senate voted to allow all but the biggest plants to continue using oil.

The Carter administration can be expected to lobby hard for the House version and to try to persuade conferees to adopt a compromise bill resembling it. The Senate rejected most of the major proposals in the Carter energy plan.

The Senate on Tuesday takes up the final part of that energy legislation — its tax aspects.

But the bill sent to the floor by the Senate Finance Committee contains none of House-passed taxes the President has proposed to conserve energy or making scarce fuels more costly.

The committee rejected taxes on crude oil, fuel-inefficient cars and the oil and natural gas used by utilities and factories. Instead, it approved some $40 billion in tax breaks to encourage energy conservation and increased production.

Debate is expected to last all week.

Senate Democratic leaders hope the President's tax program can be salvaged in a conference committee.

In the meantime, a group of Senate liberals led by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., has vowed to try to kill off many of the tax breaks in the bill, and attempts are expected on the floor to revive some of the taxes before the bill goes to the conference committee.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., has an amendment to put back into the bill the tax on cars that get poor gasoline mileage. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said he will try to revive the industrial tax on gas and oil use but only on those industries that can switch to coal.

The House begins debate Wednesday on a bill to rescue the deficit-plagued Social Security system by tax increases that would fall most heavily on higher-paid workers and their employers.

Under the plan, those earning $19,900 or more would pay $1,204 next year — $239 more than this year's maximum payroll tax of $965. Bigger increases would come later, with all workers facing some increase by 1981.

The higher taxes employees pay would be matched by their employers.

The Senate Finance Committee will continue work this week on its own version of the Social Security overhaul bill.

Votes are scheduled in the House on Tuesday on a bill to prohibit the use of children in pornography and on treaties that would allow Americans in Mexican jails to be sent to federal prisons in this country and vice versa.

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos today authorized the arming of civilians to help the government fight Moslem insurgents in the southern Philippines.

A spokesman for the rebels said, meanwhile, he had received reports that about 100 Moslem civilians were killed last week in a clash between rebels and government forces in Tictapul, a Moslem village 50 miles north of Zamboanga City. A Defense Ministry official denied the claim.

On Saturday, the government accused the rebels of burning Tictapul to prevent government troops from pursuing them, but a guerrilla leader denied it.

Marcos told reporters that villagers in Mindanao and other southern islands in the heartland of the Moslem rebellion had asked to be armed to defend themselves against "terrorists."

Presidential palace sources said

Marcos ordered that the villagers be armed with weapons surrendered after he imposed martial law five-years ago. The government has said about 600,000 assorted firearms were turned over to military authorities in a nationwide drive to collect unauthorized guns.

The sources said the presidential directive meant that the armed villagers, Christians and Moslems alike, will be incorporated with the civilian home defense force in the fight against what they called terrorists, secessionists and outlaws.

Hatimil Hassan, spokesman for Nur Misuari, the Libyanbased chief of the Moro National Liberation Front, told The Associated Press of the alleged civilian casualties in a telephone interview.

Carmelo Z. Barbero, under-secretary of defense, vigorously denied Hassan's claim. The official said Hassan was "in his hotel in Manila."

Detroit vaccination crackdown

DETROIT (AP) — Health officials said about 6,000 public school pupils were turned away from classes here this morning because they could not prove they had been immunized against childhood diseases.

State law requires that children be vaccinated for a variety of diseases unless parents sign a special waiver form stating that vaccinations are contrary to their personal or religious beliefs.

City health and school officials announced earlier that they would crack down on parents who failed to have their children immunized by refusing to admit the youngsters to classes until evidence of immunization was produced.

Dr. William Clextion, city health director, said there was no precise count of pupils sent home today because they could not show proof of immunization against measles, polio, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

"It's very difficult to gather a figure since 200 schools are involved," Clextion said. "If I had to make a guessimate, I'd say about half of those who received letters are being excluded."

School officials sent warning letters to the parents of 12,000 children who were unable to show evidence of vaccination as of two weeks ago. There are about 165,000 pupils in the city school system.

Clextion said about 1,500 students have received shots since last week at public health clinics. An undetermined number of other children has been vaccinated by private physicians, he said.

At the Butzel clinic in East Detroit, a supervisor said there was "a steady stream" of youngsters receiving shots today. More than 100 children, including 5-year-old Alfred McCaskill, filed through the line in the first half hour the clinic was open.

"I had an appointment to come in today, anyway," said Alfred's mother, Verma. "There are so many diseases going around and I think kids should have their shots."

Lavinia Wingo, principal of Jamieson Elementary School in Northwest Detroit, said about nine youngsters were turned away from that school this morning because they didn't have proof of vaccination.

"I think sometimes they have to go through the shock of actually being excluded before they realize we have to have them immunized," she said.

It is the second year in a row Detroit school officials have barred children without immunization from attending classes. Last year some 20,000 children kept out of classes until they got their shots.

Raise $56,000 in hunger walk

The nearly 3,000 persons who walked Sunday in the fourth annual "Walk for Hunger" in Pomona raised more than $56,000 in pledges for agricultural relief and development in the world's poor and hungry nations.

Officials reported 2,919 participants walked a combined 27,413 miles in a route which started at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds and extended through Pomona's commercial and residential areas.

The walkers included Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., West Covina, persons in wheelchairs, youngsters, senior citizens, and church ministers. The oldest walker was 92 years old.

The walk was sponsored by the Pomona Valley Council of Churches. The Rev. Charles Bennis was the chairman.

Funds will be used for a variety of projects in Lebanon, Vietnam, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Malawi.

Up-down weekend

CLEVELAND (AP)—A 63-year-old man who disappeared from his Veterans Administration Hospital room apparently was stuck in an elevator in the building for about 30 hours, hospital officials said.

Roland Sellers, who is confined to a wheelchair, was reported missing Saturday afternoon by his wife, Shirley. On Sunday evening, a switchboard operator reported a telephone off the hook in an elevator stuck on the fourth floor. A maintenance man opened the elevator and found Sellers, a hospital spokesman said.

Doctors said Sellers, who suffered a stroke three months ago while working as a civilian in an U.S. Army Corps of Engineers project in Toledo, was in good shape after his ordeal.

When Sellers was asked where he had been all weekend, hospital administrator Floyd Johnson quoted him as saying: "Up and down."

Prince Charles rides Texas range—on a flat saddle

ARMSTRONG, Tex. (AP) — The heir to the British throne donned cowboy gear, chaps and all, to ride the Texas range. But he sat on an English saddle. Prince Charles was on horseback Sunday riding through a herd of cattle with his hosts, Tobin and Anne Armstrong, who was ambassador to the Court of St. James's under former President Gerald Ford.

It was the start of a three-day tour of the Lone Star State. The prince was scheduled to visit Houston today for a tour of the U.S. Space Center. On Tuesday, he travels to San Antonio for a tour of the Alamo.

"He really knows his livestock," said Mrs. Armstrong. "Tobin has been so occupied preparing for the prince's visit that he hadn't had time to have the cattle sprayed and the prince noticed the flies on the cattle's shoulders."

The prince also participated in a polo match Sunday. Most of it was closed to the media and the results were not known.

"The understanding was that this was his off day to get off by himself and get out of the public eye," explained Mrs. Armstrong, who gave a barbecue in Prince Charles' honor.

Charles arrived here after visits in Georgia and South Carolina. He worshipped at the Cathedral of St. Philip in Atlanta Sunday, asking those who waited outside for a chance to see him: "Why weren't you in church?"

Worshippers needed admission tickets to attend.

In San Francisco, where Charles is to appear Thursday, demonstrators opposed to the continued presence of British soldiers in Northern Ireland say they are preparing 1,500 black coffins for a grim protest of the four-day visit.

"The Prince of Wales represents a government indicted by the European Council of Human Rights for the torture of Irish men imprisoned without trial," said spokesman Seamus Gibney. "We're trying to let people know that British torture continues."

The Valley Body identified

Police have identified a badly decomposed body found near Puddingstone Dam Saturday afternoon as that of a Pomona man.

The body of Fred Lee Mason, 28, of 549 Mayfair Ave., Pomona, was discovered in brush near Cannon Drive and Walnut Avenue in San Dimas while sheriff's deputies were searching for a would-be rapist in Bonelli Park.

Chino cyclist killed

A Chino man was killed Sunday night when his motorcycle ran off Chino Avenue east of Vineyard Avenue in the Chino area and struck a telephone pole.

John Machado Xavier was pronounced dead at the scene. The highway patrol reported the motorcycle left the highway on a slight curve and traveled along the dirt shoulder for 120 feet before crashing into the pole.

The body was released to Griffith Mortuary, Chino, where funeral arrangements are pending.

Samaritan's car stolen

Upland police today were seeking a two-door maroon colored sedan stolen by two hitchhikers who threatened its woman driver with a gun on the San Bernardino Freeway near Euclid Avenue Sunday night.

Police said the woman picked up the two men in the Rialto area and was driving on the freeway in Upland when one said he had a gun and ordered her to stop her car. She said the man forced her outside and they drove off, going south on Euclid Avenue. The woman said, however, she did not see a gun.

Burglary nets $2,600

Burglars entered the kitchen window of a home on Rudisill Avenue in Montclair during the weekend and stole jewelry, stereo equipment and other items valued at $2,600, police reported.

Police said the thieves left through the front door of the home with the items. The owners said they had left Friday for a weekend trip and returned Sunday night to discover the burglary.

Briefs Thief snatches woman's purse

A thief grabbed a woman's purse and another man attempted to steal a cash box from the Thrifty Store at G Street and Mountain Avenue in Ontario within 14 minutes Sunday, police reported.

The purse snatch, reported at 7:52 p.m., occurred when a dark, acne-faced man made a dive for a woman's purse just as she was walking into the Thrifty Store. The thief tore the purse from the woman's arm and fled. The purse, belonging to an Ontario woman, contained a small amount of cash. At 8:06 p.m., the manager of the Thrifty Store watched as a scraggly bearded man pried open a counter cabinet and placed a cash box inside of a newspaper. The manager said she approached the man and grabbed the cashbox back. The man looked at the manager and fled out the door. Police discovered that the man had used some type of pry tool.

Elsewhere Blaze kills seven

CHICAGO (AP) — The careless use of a cigarette appeared to be the cause of a fire in a South Side Chicago hotel that took seven lives and injured 12 persons, authorities said.

The damage in Sunday's early morning blaze at the Hotel Toledo was estimated at about $35,000, officials said.

The fire apparently started in a first-floor apartment and quickly engulfed the two-story brick building, driving residents, some of them only partially clothed, out second floor windows in desperate efforts to escape.

Optimistic GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans can overcome the Democrats' current 2-to-1 advantage and take control of the House in 1978, the chamber's GOP floor leader says.

Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., says a Republican victory is "highly possible" because President Carter's administration has been a failure.

"The country has had eight months of churning and chaos without any great amount of result," Rhodes said Sunday.

Mystery blasts kill 4

CLEVELAND (AP) — Four persons were killed in one of two explosions that went off at suburban houses within half a mile of each other early today, police said. The four were not immediately identified.

They died in a blast and fire at the home of Donald Swineheart in a fashionable section of suburban Brunswick. Neighbors said Swineheart and his wife have three sons, one of whom is away at college.

About two hours after the Brunswick explosion, a $78,000 model home in nearby Strongsville sustained about $8,000 damage in another blast, authorities said.

The causes of the explosions were undetermined. Police would not immediately say whether they believed the blasts were related.

Cy Reffert, a neighbor of the Swineheart family, said he heard the explosion and looked out his window. One side of the split-level house had fallen over and the building was in flames. Windows in his own home were smashed by the force of the blast, he said.

Another neighbor said a vehicle with headlights off was seen driving away from the Swineheart home moments after the explosion there.

Names in the news

TINY TIM

MISS VICKI

RON NESSEN

ELAINE NOBLE

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — The marriage of Tiny Tim and Miss Vicki, which began before millions on a late night television show in 1969, may end in a courtroom.

A divorce hearing was scheduled for today after a lawyer for Tiny Tim told a judge last week that the falsetto singer was on a concert tour in Florida, and unavailable for divorce proceedings.

"He's accountable to this court first, not to his entertainment calendar," replied Superior Court Judge Paul Lowengrub.

Miss Vicki, the former Victoria Budinger of Hadfield, N.J., filed for divorce in 1975. The couple separated in December 1973. She is not seeking alimony.

A lawyer for the singer said his client would fight the divorce and seek custody of his daughter, Tulip, 6.

"He believes strongly that what God hath joined, no man shall put asunder," said the lawyer, Philip Paley.

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) — Ron Nessen, a former presidential press secretary and NBC television reporter, says broadcast journalism is "shallow and simplistic."

Nessen, former President Ford's press aide, told a conference this weekend at Whitman College: "Television cannot deal in a serious way with complex issues that we all face daily. It does not deal well with abstract ideas, long-term social trends or even the language."

However, he said television does well in portraying conflict, staged or dramatic events.

The power of newspapers, television and radio to ignore an issue or personality was greater than their focusing on persons or events, Nessen said.

"What we see on the 'tube' is what we know of the world," he said. "If we don't see it on television, it doesn't exist."

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Former President Ford's "Republican conservatism" turned out to be not quite conservative enough in a wager with Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn.

Humphrey said Sunday that Ford telephoned him on Friday to make a bet on the football game between Minnesota and No. 1-ranked Michigan.

At first, Humphrey said Ford offered to give him 14 points.

"I called that Republican conservatism and said I wouldn't settle for any less than three touchdowns," said Humphrey.

They compromised on a 20-point edge for Michigan in the $5 wager. Humphrey won, as Minnesota stunned Michigan 16-0.

Humphrey called Ford

after the game, and the senator said: "I told him, 'Mr. President, send the check.' I gave him two or three addresses where he can send it so I'd be sure to get it."

BOSTON (AP) — State Rep. Elaine Noble, who became the first avowed lesbian to win elective office in the nation three years ago, is giving up her seat in the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

An aide, Carla Brewington, said Miss Noble, 34, will not seek reelection next year because her father is ill.

Miss Brewington said the congresswoman learned of her father's illness Monday. She said Miss Noble was in San Francisco, and was not expected to be back in Boston before Thursday.

Miss Noble was not available for comment.

Before she was elected to the house in 1974, Miss Noble was a phonetics teacher at Emerson College here.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young has told a black university audience "a common bond of oppression" has helped him sympathize with white governments in Rhodesia and South Africa.

"I can understand the feelings of Ian Smith (Rhodesian prime minister) towards the British colonial government," Young said.

Dentist says

Spain mishandled air crash dead

TORONTO (AP) — A Dutch medical investigator says Spanish authorities mixed up the bodies of American and Dutch victims of the world's worst air disaster in the Canary Islands last March before the remains could be identified.

Dr. Elsworth Free, a dentist, told a meeting of international experts in forensic dentistry that some bodies were secretly exchanged by Dutch and U.S. officials after they were shipped to the wrong country.

He said 44 of the 248 bodies classified as Dutch still have not been positively identified and there is no way of knowing whether the unidentified remains in Dutch graves are those of Dutch or U.S. citizens.

The runway collision March 27 at Santa Cruz de Tenerife between a KLM Boeing 747 jetliner and a Pan American 747 killed 577 persons.

Free told a weekend workshop at the annual World Dental Congress that Spanish authorities removed the bodies and put them in a hangar 48 hours before Dutch and U.S. medical teams arrived.

Moving the bodies complicated the identification problem because although the chartered KLM plane had an accurate passenger list, there was no way to tell where the bodies had been located in the wreckage, he said. In one case, he said, the body of a father was put with the victims of one country and his son with those of another.

He said the jawbones of most of those believed to be the Dutch victims were removed from the bodies to attempt identification from dental records.

Dr. Dick Schlaap of Groningen University said the work could not be completed in the hangar used as a morgue because a Spanish law requires bodies to be embalmed and placed in coffins within 48 hours of death.

Dr. Free said 20 dentists worked on the dental identification for 10 days.

The latest positive identification of a Dutch victim came only two weeks ago, he said.

Kentucky night club fire

Code violations not fixed?

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Beverly Hills Supper Club was told in 1970 to correct some fire code violations but had not done so six years later despite reports to the contrary, it was reported today.

Fire swept through the large Midwest night spot in Southgate on May 28, killing 164 persons. A state report says numerous fire code violations were committed and three state fire officials have been suspended pending completion of a state investigation.

The Courier-Journal newspaper reported in a copyrighted story in today's editions that John Bramlage, a deputy fire marshal, has told investigators he visited the club in February 1976 to determine whether construction violations listed on a 1970 memorandum had been corrected.

According to the newspaper, Bramlage said he could not remember specific violations uncovered in his 1976 inspection, but said that his inspection report did include some violations that were listed on the 1970 memorandum.

The 1970 memorandum was prepared by Stanley Boyd, deputy state fire marshal. Boyd, Bramlage and state Fire Marshal Warren Southworth have been suspended.

Southworth told The Courier-Journal that the 1970 memorandum was given to John Calvert, then state fire marshal. Southworth said that "I was under the impression it was cleared up at that time."

Southworth added that "I don't know anything" about the 1976 Bramlage report.

Calvert said in a 1971 letter to Southgate, Ky., officials that he had been assured by club owner Richard Schilling that the violations contained in Boyd's memorandum would be corrected before the club opened in 1971.

Calvert was later quoted in a 1971 newspaper story as saying that the violations had been corrected.

Acting state Fire Marshal Robert Estep said he came across the report recently while closing out other files.

"I just casually mentioned that there were some boxes downstairs in the storage room (of the Capital Plaza Building in Frankfort)," said Estep. He said the report "was in a file marked 'Beverly Hills.' I think."

Estep said he turned the report over to the Kentucky State Police, which is investigating the fire.

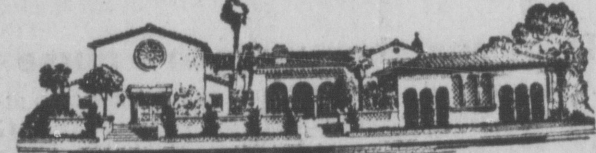

He declined to comment otherwise.

Hard-core offenders targeted

Bulging penitentiaries are becoming part of problem

EDITOR'S NOTE: For many years, crime has been near the top of the list of things that worry Americans most. Society's success in dealing with hard-core offenders has been minimal. And now our bulging penitentiaries seem part of the problem rather than the solution. This is the first of a two part series.

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newfeatures Writer
JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — This is one of the places where they warehouse crime. This is where they put away the worst of us to protect the rest of us.

But the warehouse is brim full.

In state after state, citizens and lawmakers have demanded stiffer penalties, less parole, less probation, less plea bargaining, tougher and more professional police work.

Fewer than half the serious crimes are solved, far fewer offenders than that end up in prison. A third of the criminals end up behind bars time and again.

The stolid red brick building of the Illinois State Prison hides a digestive tract that is swollen beyond its concrete capacity.

Three men are crammed into a cell a little larger than a Ping-Pong table with triple tier bunks, a naked commode. There are 2,500 prisoners in a space meant for 1,500.

The Stateville story repeats itself around the nation. There are 280,000 in America's prisons, 250,000 more in jails, an increase of 200,000 over the past five years. Nearly one of 400 Americans is behind bars.

"The criminal justice system is in chaos and moving from bad to worse," says Anthony Trivisono, executive director of the American Correctional Association.

Some experts in the criminal justice system would make punishment and arrest more certain. One, Norval Morris, dean of the University of Chicago law school, would limit police action to crimes of predation — murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, arson, burglary, stealing — to make the police more effective.

But the nation's prisons, where the buck stops, are in desperate shape. They are ripe for riot and rampage. "We don't like to talk about it," one prison expert says. "But our job is to warehouse people."

South Carolina had 4,000 inmates in 1974, more than 7,000 today. Michigan has more than 11,000 inmates in space designed for 5,000. Ohio, by expert estimates, has 3,000 more than it can properly supervise. It has 13,000 prisoners. Georgia has 12,000 in space designed for 8,000. Maryland and Alabama are holding people in city and county jails awaiting state prison space.

The picture at Stateville speaks graphically for the nation as a whole.

Beyond the red brick entrance building is the prison proper, a circular main building, the rotunda, with satellite cell blocks radiating outward.

To the right is Death Row. It serves as an orientation center for new prisoners.

Prison officials have just reinstated one of its two electric chairs and five cells, should Illinois join other states in restoring Society's success in dealing with offenders is minimal--

To the left is Cell Block B. Its prisoners are dangerous to the guards, to other prisoners and to themselves. There is a continuous, angry din. The smell is a mixture of sweat, disinfectant and urine. "Prison smell," assistant warden Nick Mellas explains. He draws the visitor under the shelter of the second tier balcony. "They'll throw anything," he says. One lunch tray of food is dropping down the opposite wall.

The other side of Cell Block B is quieter. These are prisoners being investigated for crimes committed within the prison.

Cell Block E is a story unto itself. It's the safekeeping block. These prisoners have asked to be locked away 24 hours a day. Some have been raped. Most have been brutalized by other prisoners. The fear is almost palpable. One baby-faced youth tells how he escaped rape the day before. "They're all getting younger," Mellas says as he walks away.

The young black waiting outside the prison barbershop is getting out tomorrow. Nothing will bring him back, he says. Mellas asks how many times he has been in Stateville. The prisoner pretends not to understand. Finally he admits this is his second sentence for burglary. He has been back already.

Then he gives Mellas a course in prison mathematics. The first sentence was one to three years, but he was out in less than a year. The second sentence was one to two years, and he served 18 months. He found it more significant that the second sentence was lighter than the first, even though he had served more time. Again he pledged not to return. Mellas walked away with a small sad smile.

Unique by almost any standard is the Texas prison system. It operates on the wording of Texas law: A person committed to prison in Texas shall work.

And work they do. Every prisoner spends his first five to eight months at work in the fields, where the Texas system produces 75 to 80 percent of its own foodstuffs, including all of its meat.

By selling clothes and services to other branches of government, the Texas system is self-sustaining. For instance, it repairs all school buses in the state. It operates its own construction firm.

There is little undisciplined, unsupervised time for prisoners. If a prisoner wants to pursue academic work, he must do it on his own time, after work.

Texas' prison system is jammed to the rafters, but one of its hallmarks is cleanliness. Each prisoner gets a bath and fresh clothes daily. Standards of hygiene are comparable to those of the military in the 1950s, says Jim Estelle, director of prisons.

The mammoth Texas system manages its 22,000 prisoners with a staff ratio of 1-to-8, half the national average, but it has counted only 19 homicides within prison walls in the past five years, 19 escapes two years ago, 13 last year and one up to September of this year — and that's with 5,000 prisoners working outside the walls on any given day.

Nevertheless, about one in three discharged prisoners returns, about the national average.

Texas prison authorities are host to a continual stream of visitors from other states looking for their secret. Because its Department of Corrections is autonomous, and because unions do not oppose the prisoner work program, Texas is able to run its shops just like a business.

Texas is the only state which does not pay its prisoners. "In the other 49, inmates get anything from 10 cents to $2.50 to $5 an hour. But in Texas you either live in an institution and work, or you go out on a farm and pick cotton," Travisono says.

Most prison experts agree that the old bastille, the walled prison containing thousands, works against itself.

Norman Carlson, director of federal prisons, says, "Our past attempts to deal with offenders in prison has not been effective."

He cites Norval Morris' precept, "first of all do no harm; make sure the person doesn't come out worse than he went in. You just can't achieve that in a maximum security, bastille-type of prison."

It has led to a different concept, like the federal correctional facility at Butner, N.C.

"It's safer, it's humane, there's very little violence around the place," says Carlson.

Butner looks more like a junior college campus. There are no bars on the windows, only an airplane-type of plexiglass that won't shatter and can withstand massive blows. The buildings are white and low. Each has a recreational room with pool tables.

Like all other prisons, Butner is overcrowded. One-man rooms are doubled up.

Of the nearly 6,000 state, federal and local jails, prisons and detention centers in the United States, perhaps none is like Butner. It is an experiment, one suggested by Chicago law school dean Morris.

At present it has fewer than 400 inmates. It will ultimately have up to 500. The only segregated part of the population is the psychiatric section, and these inmates are integrated with the rest as much as possible.

The nugget of Butner's inmate population is the research section. These are hardened criminals chosen by computer. They are on a program of a half day of work and the other half of group discussions and elected activities, often educational.

If they don't like it, they can transfer back to other federal institutions. So far the dropout rate is 18 percent, most of it because Butner so far has little industry for inmates to earn money, and partly because there is no way for a prisoner to melt away with a 1-to-2 staff ratio.

The staff is pretty much aware of what every prisoner is doing all the time. Yet it is not obvious. The guard stations look like small offices. There are no firearms within the institution, which is common practice at all federal prisons.

What amazes officials at Butner and elsewhere is that there have been no escapes, no serious assaults.

But the heart of the program is that whatever a prisoner does to help himself is voluntary.

The program also will test the feasibility of gradual release. In his last six months at Butner a prisoner may be granted monthly furloughs of three to seven days and may be sent finally to a halfway house preparatory to release.

A study group at the University of North Carolina eventually will evaluate whether the Morris plan has cut down on the return of criminals to prison.

$26 MILLION PROPOSAL

Map shows locations of the improvements proposed by the Pomona Valley Municipal Water District if its $26 million bond issue is approved by the district voters on Nov. 8. The Claremont League of Women Voters is challenging it.

Investigation sought into water district's promotion of its $26 million bond issue

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont chapter of the League of Women Voters has called for an investigation into the alleged promotion of next month's $26 million water bond issue by the Pomona Valley Municipal Water District.

Mary Jane Merrill, president of the chapter, announced that the league has asked state Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger for an opinion on whether spending public funds to promote the election is legal.

She claims the district has earmarked $77,000 this year for a promotional program to assure an affirmative vote Nov. 8. She said most of that money will go to pay the political campaign firm of Butcher-Forde of Orange County to promote the bond issue.

Stan Kawa, general manager of the PVMWD, denied the league's charges and explained the district had been using public relations firms for some time now.

"This year we changed from Roger Beck Associates to Butcher-Forde because we felt the latter could do a better job," he maintained. "They are conducting a program to inform the people of the valley about our future needs. That's public information and there is nothing wrong with it."

The women claim the promotion firm already has sent out two mailings — paid for with public funds — urging an affirmative vote on the bond issue, as well as a "loaded" questionnaire designed to scare people into voting for the bonds.

Mrs. Merrill said that in addition to Younger, the chapter also has asked the state's Fair Campaign Practices Commission to look into the expenditures.

Kawa contended there were a few women in the chapter who had "apparently dedicated themselves to harassing the water district." He claimed that the rest of the membership "doesn't really go along with them."

The district and the league are expected to clash at least twice publicly before the election.

Kawa will discuss the bond issue at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Glendora City Library before the Glendora League of Women Voters, and at noon Nov. 3 before the Claremont Kiwanis Club. The women said they will be at both meetings.

Meanwhile, Fred Sharp, former Pomona city administrator, has revealed that he is forming a valleywide Citizens' Committee on Water that will help promote the bond issue.

Sharp said he was convinced the issue was necessary to the future of the valley.

Kawa said the bonds, if approved by a simple majority, will buy the necessary storage facilities and pipelines to take water in sufficient amounts to wherever it is needed throughout the valley.

"We have ample water from local wells, from the Colorado River and from Northern California," he explained. "What we need is a better and bigger storage and distribution system."

He said the proposed treatment plant in Claremont will make it possible to cut pumping costs and allow distribution mostly by gravity flow.

The women contend the district doesn't need the larger system. They insist the present system, along with the use of the Weymouth plant of the Metropolitan Water District, is sufficient. That plant is far below capacity right now.

Kawa claims all of the district's participating members have endorsed the bond issue as necessary to the area's needs. He contended that since the women are not experts on water, they don't really understand what's involved.

If the bond issue is approved, the district wants to build one distribution system for the north, including Claremont, La Verne, San Dimas, Glendora, Covina and Pomona, and another for the south that would include Diamond Bar, Walnut and Rowland Heights.

The two systems would be tied together by the existing Orange County Feeder line, which would be bought by the water district. Treatment plants and reservoirs are proposed as part of both lines.

Kawa contends that, while the valley "can struggle along" with the present system for a few more years, providing there is no more growth, present facilities cannot accommodate the ongoing expansion.

He estimates that the district's population will go from 325,000 to 400,000 by 1987.

Decline of institutions causing mental illness

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

The deterioration of our social institutions — marriage, the family and the church — contribute to the increase in the number of people with mental illnesses, says a Pomona psychiatrist.

Dr. Ronald C. Smith, director of the Pomona Neuro-Psychiatric Center and a professor at the USC School of Medicine, believes that the social institutions upon which people need to rely in times of crisis no longer offer the necessary support.

A graduate of the University of Minnesota Medical School, Dr. Smith was in general practice before he specialized in psychiatry and turned his interest to the area of crisis intervention.

"Crisis intervention is based on looking for and isolating a specific stress which has occurred and caused the individual problems with which he cannot cope," explains Dr. Smith.

"If we can isolate that stress, then we can help the patient in handling it. Stresses include such things as a death in the family, rape, loss of a job, menopause, failure in school or the overuse of alcohol or medication."

Crisis intervention is not considered a "cure" of the patient, but rather the attempt to return him to the normal functions he had prior to the crisis.

Dr. Smith explains that crisis intervention treatment usually lasts for about six weeks. This is different from long-term analysis which can last for years and be extremely expensive. In crisis intervention, the past is not probed and the unconscious is not tapped.

It is the present situation that is dealt with, adds the doctor.

Patients with similar problems are often treated in group sessions. Dr. Smith and his colleagues at the clinic work with local law enforcement agencies in the community and offer around-the-clock emergency service when necessary.

"Pomona has some unique problems in that it is comprised of three isolated communities which do not communicate with each other," said the psychiatrist.

He explains that the Latin community is still very isolated and these people are extremely hesitant to seek outside help in a family crisis.

"The black community has become more motivated to seek professional help," Dr. Smith continues. "We are now seeing a number of black patients, many of whom are referred from other agencies."

A major cause of stress among young people, the doctor believes, is the American emphasis on competition.

"We start making our kids compete with each other at a very young age. This causes all kinds of emotional problems."

Program for parents of retarded outlined

Parents of developmentally disabled children Tuesday will be introduced to a new project called Community Outreach Parent Educators (COPE) at the Ontario-Pomona Association for Retarded Citizens (OPARC), 9160 Monte Vista Ave., Montclair.

The meeting, first in a series of six scheduled, will begin at 7:30 p.m. COPE is financed by a $30,000 grant from the Developmental Disabilities section of the State Department of Health.

OPARC executive director Mary Boyd Merrill is project administrator. Judith Cook, OPARC infant program coordinator, is project coordinator. Joanne Travers, former OPARC principal, is parent educator.

Additional meetings will be held Nov. 1, 8, 15, 22 and 29. Parents wishing to attend may call 986-7555 or 626-5108.

According to Mrs. Merrill, a crisis occurs at the time a parent receives the initial diagnosis that a child is developmentally disabled.

"The way in which the diagnosis is given, the timing and the method become points of reference that remain with the family for the rest of their lives," she continued.

"Their need for emotional support and information from those who understand their trauma is immediate. Parents have expressed their inability to relate to professionals at this time because they feel that the latter have not actually lived the experience."

"Useful information, as well as emotional support offer time and alternatives from which thoughtful, informed decisions can be made by the parents," said Mrs. Merrill.

The project will provide trained parent volunteers, in addition to a professional staff, to talk with new parents.

Parents will be contacted on an informal basis, only at their request, Mrs. Merrill explained. They will be provided information about developmental disabilities and what resources are available to them. No fees will be charged.

Coveralls and makeup

Eileen Daleo: tiny woman doing a big man's job

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Eileen Daleo is a tiny keg of spirit, ambition and sheer guts.

She wears coveralls and makeup to work, worries about her duties in Ontario's equipment fleet division ruining her fingernails, and seeks no special favors as the city's first — and only — woman in a heavy equipment job.

"Females have a tendency of forgetting they're women and leading the males into forgetting it. I'm not one of the fellows. I'm a woman."

"It's a cop out to say what kind of job a woman should do. I'm not doing this to show a man up. I'm doing it to provide the things I want for myself and my child, Erika."

Miss Daleo was told of the openings for Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) employees in Ontario by a friend.

She rejected a $450 a month clerk job for the $780 a month job as fleet worker and mechanic trainee "because I can do a lot more with $780 a month than I can with $450. And I was getting off welfare."

The Montclair woman, 24, has little apprehension about facing new challenges. Her tremendous religious faith is a stabilizer and source of encouragement, giving her strength to overcome personal tragedies and determination to move into new worlds of positive experiences.

Her appearance — short, with a reddish natural, brown-eyed and wearing glasses — denies the feisty attitude that permeates her personality.

That attitude, coupled with her sense of humor, bluntness and hard work, have made it easier for her co-workers to accept her into the formerly all-male dominion of the city yards.

"First they had a lot of dirty books. They don't anymore," she chuckled. "I was given authority to throw away all pornography. They've really cleaned up their act. At first it was a little hard, but we get along now."

Miss Daleo recalled the most difficult thing for the men to overcome was doing special favors when certain tasks seemed too difficult for her.

"I don't care much for special favors," she said. "If it's something I can't lift, fine. There are many things I can't do and won't be able to. But let me try it out first. And then again, you can't tell. I might end up having to do it myself one day."

The mistakes in the new job are taken in stride. Besides the routine duties of assisting in washing, polishing and maintaining the 195 city vehicles, Miss Daleo is getting minor mechanical training to lubricate, change oil and service automobiles and trucks, said Jim Clayton, equipment fleet superintendent.

"One day I spent 20 minutes trying to get a bolt off the oil pan. Stuff was falling all in my face and I was getting mad," she said.

"I was turning it the wrong way," she laughed. "I had just gotten my hair permed and oil was all in it. Oh, I've had my days."

"It gets to be pretty funny sometimes. The guys crack up. They don't take it as 'she's dumb' or make fun of me. They just take it as an experience, a learning experience," she recalled.

Miss Daleo is not a feminist. "I still wear makeup to work. It's gone when I leave, but I come in looking good," she said.

"I feel a woman should cook and clean, but I also feel she should support herself, be independent. And if both the man and woman are working, he should help out at home," she added.

"Everybody has the same needs and desires. God put those feelings in us. You as a woman can't do everything a man can do anymore than a man can do everything a woman can do."

"As long as my supervisors like my work and I put forth effort, I'll be all right. And I don't expect any slack because I'm a woman."

Miss Daleo is not one who lives simply for today. She's a planner with a program. The first item on her list is getting a car so she can attend Chaffey College and a mechanics' school.

She plans to use the knowledge and experience from her Ontario job and combine it with business management courses to open her own auto service business.

"I'm going to keep stepping up. I'm going to step high. There are so many things I want to do. I've got the ambition and determination, and I'm crazy enough to do it."

"I'm going to make it because I've got faith and God is on my side," she declared.

Big Labor's end around play

Big Labor is trying an end around play in hopes that while the opposition is engaged in the diversion it will be able to squeeze through Congress labor law revisions designed to force employers into forcing their workers into unions.

While all eyes are focused on the first battle, labor has diverted the attention of its foes on a new proposal which would require federal government employees to support unwanted unions in order to work for their own government.

This second attack on employee rights was unexpected by Washington observers, most of whom thought Big Labor would zero in on the labor law revision package after the defeat of its "common situs" picketing bill earlier this year.

Union lobbyists feel, however, they may have a better chance of getting one or the other compulsory unionism proposal passed if they can weaken the opposition by making them concentrate on two major bills at the same time.

The bill which would require unionism in the federal civil service was authored by William Clay (D-Mo.) and William Ford (D-Mich.)

Their bill had not been considered an immediate threat since the Civil Service Commission would not take a position on any such legislation until it completes a study of the situation. That study would not be ready until next year.

Federal employees have long been guaranteed their right to join or refrain from joining unions. According to a poll taken by The Roper Organization earlier this year, only 17 per cent of the public favor "arrangements requiring public employees to support a union in order to work for the government." Sixty-nine per cent said they were opposed.

If Congress should cave in to Big Labor's demand for legislation compelling federal employees to support unwanted unions, similar legislation affecting the nearly 12 million employees of state, county and local governments certainly would be the next step.

For anyone who believes in the process of government by and for the people, the idea of government being controlled by union bosses — from top to bottom — is too frightening to contemplate.

Bad news, bad taste

It's either the unfunniest joke we've heard since a fellow named Earl Butz talked himself out of a job in the Agriculture Department, or it's the worst public relations gaffe since Marie Antoinette advised the starving French to eat cake.

We're referring to the suggestion made by the executive secretary of the National Peach Council that older workers who won't want children or people who would like to get around religious prohibitions against birth control be allowed to handle the pesticide DBCP.

Robert K. Phillips made the suggestion — apparently in all seriousness — in a letter to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration shortly after that agency, the Environmental Protection Agency and the Food and Drug Administration imposed emergency restrictions on the pesticide because of the discovery that workers in a California chemical plant had been sterilized through contact with it.

DBCP, a soil fumigant, has also been shown to cause cancer in rats, which makes us wonder why Phillips did not also recommend that people with a secret death wish be included among those permitted to gambol (gamble?) amongst the peach groves.

Opposes bailing out theater

Dear Editor:

When our country finally goes bankrupt and the working men and women are "sucked" dry by the federal, state and city politicians of their hard-earned living, it will be, in my view, thanks to "citizens" committees like the one advocating funds to "bail out" the Fox Theater.

"Advance a loan of $25,000," says the "committee," according to the report. And the good Mayor Mr. Bader said, reportedly, "if we don't get a federal or state grant, we are not even in the ball game."

Federal, state or city funds and/or grants come out of the same pocket, yours and mine. Think about it next time tax time comes around.

If "bailing out" the Fox is such a great opportunity, why doesn't Roy Day & Company invest their own money in the venture?

The fact that it has to be "bailed out" should tell even the most naive something.

It reminds me of those great planners and "citizens" who foresaw the Pomona Mall as a "boon" to economic growth.

If the city of Pomona has a surplus of money to spend, spend it on a benefit to all the community, not just some special interest group.

Since the City Council is at least considering spending taxpayers' money for the "Fox venture," I would like to know the following:

1. What areas of the city need street lighting and don't have it.
2. What street intersections need stop signs and don't have them.
3. What streets need paving and don't have it.

In conclusion, stop what I believe is nothing less than "legal plunder."

Feds balk at saving energy

WASHINGTON — President Carter has called upon the nation to save energy, but he can't get his own bureaucrats to agree on ways and means.

He has asked his fellow Americans to drive smaller cars, lower their thermostats and insulate their homes to reduce oil consumption. The populace, of course, is expected to sacrifice with a smile. But a conservation plan for the federal bureaucracy has run into petulant resistance.

The president issued an executive order last July that the government must reduce fuel consumption by 20 percent in federal automobiles and buildings (45 percent in new buildings). But so far, all he has gotten from the bureaucrats is a lot of groaning and griping.

Representatives from the various government agencies met behind closed doors last month to discuss how to implement the president's order. The confidential minutes show that the bureaucrats spent the whole time bellyaching.

The Federal Energy Administration, which is now being absorbed into the new Energy Department, was supposed to draft the energy guidelines. But the other agencies couldn't agree on conservation measures and refused to accept the guidelines.

The Defense Department consumes the most energy and, therefore, is the most in need of a conservation program. But the Pentagon representative, Col. J.F. Miley, began whining "before the discussion began," the minutes relate.

"He saw no reason to discuss the guidelines in detail," the minutes quoted him as saying, "as they are unacceptable." He grumped that the "guidelines tell agencies how (to save energy), and Defense does not think FEA, the early arrival, is competent to do this."

Similar disgruntled comments were registered by representatives from the Veterans Administration and National Aeronautics and Space Administration, according to the minutes. There was an almighty uproar, for example, over FEA's plan to place special meters in each federal building to audit the energy use.

Growled the Transportation Department representative: "FEA is treating us like children while, in fact, we are professional engineers." He added that the FEA "is not competent to tell Transportation how to (conserve energy)."

But it was the Pentagon's Miley who continued to complain the loudest. The FEA had "written the plans backwards," he snorted, "as it excludes 98 percent of the facilities."

A General Services Administration official chimed in: "The guidelines are no guides at all but regulations."

The meeting continued that way, according to the confidential minutes, with disagreement upon disagreement. Finally, Col. Miley served notice on behalf of the Pentagon: "We will comply with the Executive Order but not the guidelines as drafted. (We) do not want to be forced to stonewall but will if necessary."

CURIOUS CONTRACT: Huge amounts of money flow into the coffers of those corporations that have mastered the art of winning a federal contract. The key to success often lies in knowing the bureaucrats who award the contracts.

About this, that

American Indians taught early colonists how to make syrup and today it still is produced only in the United States and Canada. From 40 to 50 gallons of tree sap are boiled down to get one gallon of the rich syrup.

Paul Harvey

Can it be happening here?

Americans are the world's most efficient farmers. This has to do partly with the evolution and mechanization of farming in the United States.

Elsewhere in the world, whenever farmers accumulate enough land to justify mechanizing, some dictator emerges promising to redistribute the wealth — to take the land away from the big landowners and give it to the peasants.

And wherever the dictator accomplishes this, the peasants remain peasants, each with a parcel of land too small for anything more than back-breaking subsistence.

America's factory farms, on the other hand, are so efficient that each American farmer can feed his own family plus 50 other people.

Surely our government would never sabotage that efficiency by limiting each farmer to no more than 160 acres . . .

What'll you bet?

In the Imperial Valley of California the courts are in the process of limiting each individual farmer to

They would give all farmers 10 years to sell off any lands in excess of 160 acres and the Bureau of Reclamation will set the price.

Imperial Valley farmers have been informed that confiscated lands must be sold for the price those lands brought before there was water available.

Obviously, $2,000-an-acre land could be force-sold for $400, wiping out the investment of generations, sending mortgaged farmers into bankruptcy.

How can the government do such a thing?

The Carter Administration believes that ownership of Western lands irrigated with water from federal reclamation projects must be restricted. That the big farms must be broken up in favor of small "family farms."

In this valley 160 acres is no longer — if it ever was — an economically sound farming unit. Banks will not finance 160-acre farming units.

These farms have been exempt from the Reclamation Act of 1902 by ses since. Imperial Valley farmers went ahead and built bigger, more efficient, more productive farms.

Now out of the blue comes this court order which — if it stands — says the federal dams which provide irrigation water are giving an unfair advantage to a few, so those big farms must be broken into pieces. And the owners won't even get a fair market price.

Many mortgaged Imperial Valley farms will drown in their own water. The farmers, naturally, feel misled and double-crossed.

What are the odds that the court order will survive appeals?

Well, farmers are no longer sufficiently numerous to mount much clout in Washington. Individual "rights" these days seem to be reserved for the "have-nots" at whatever expense to the "haves."

But I've news for the city dukes who think they don't need to care: You enforce inefficiency in American farming, and you're going to pay the difference at the grocery

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

It can easily be proven that there should be no such thing as unemployment in this country. All one has to do is check the page after page of job opportunities listed in any Sunday newspaper. There, firms are frantically advertising for systems support analysts, solar application engineers, internal auditors, underwater acoustics engineers, behavioral scientists, pricing and proposal specialists, environmental services directors, sales information coordinators and even peripherals marketing managers. For anyone seeking employment, the jobs are there. But, of course, if all one is qualified for is a job in a steel mill or a supersonic bomber factory, a grade school teaching position or even a college professorship, finding employment can be a bit of a problem. To succeed in today's world, one must first become a specialist, or he has only himself to blame for being unemployed.

Question need of costly survey

By EARL G. WATERS

The highly questionable expenditure of $1 million for a demographic survey of the state's handicapped population has become even more bizarre as new evidence is uncovered.

Disclosure that the Department of Rehabilitation had let a contract totaling $965,000 for the survey through random dialing of 30,000 homes was first made by this column in July. It was reported then that the contract had been awarded without bids, using money not sanctioned by the Legislature. It was also reported that the information sought was already available in great detail in a report made for the Pacific Telephone Co. by the San Francisco-based research firm of Firing and Associates.

Concerned about this apparent waste of taxpayers' money, Sen. Robert Presley asked Gov. Jerry Brown for an explanation. The result was a "brush-off" letter from the department's director, Ed Roberts, who told Presley the survey had been made necessary by a legislative resolution authored by Assemblyman Frank Lanterman. He justified his failure to seek bids by stating such was not mandatory.

Lanterman, however, was emphatic in denying that his resolution prompted the survey, stating he had merely called for a study of the feasibility for such a survey, "not to actually conduct a survey." He said he had been assured the study could be done at "virtually no cost."

Subsequently, when questioned by the Little Hoover Commission, Roberts contended the Firing report was "unreliable" and asserted the $1 million study was cheap, since he had been advised an "exhaustive survey" would cost $100 million. He said the data was needed to enable his department to get a larger share of federal money.

But Lanterman, an expert in fiscal and budgetary matters with 28 years in the Legislature, was firm in his declaration that "competitive bids should have been solicited." Not only does the fact that PT&T obtained their study for only $8,000 indicate that but Lanterman disclosed that Roberts knew the Gallup organization was prepared to make a survey for a 10th of the state's commitment. Gallup had eschewed a dialing survey, proposing a personal household survey instead. Conceding this to be "the most expensive interviewing technique," he nevertheless offered to do it for $130,000.

Where the whole matter really becomes bizarre is to be found in the feasibility report which was finally delivered by the department to Lanterman, albeit 2½ months late.

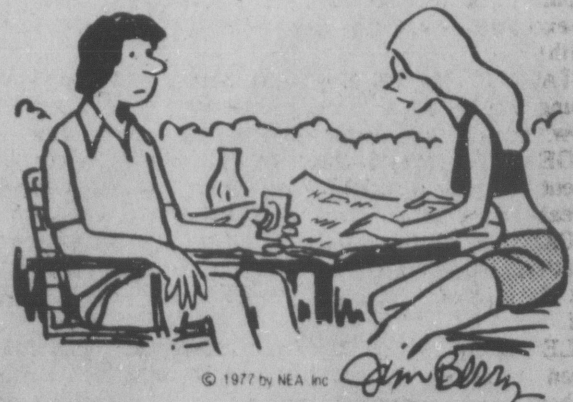

That report not only threw cold water on the dialing survey but cast doubts as to the need and value of any survey.

Thus the spending of $1 million for the department's survey, with or without bids, is immediately suspect. For, even if the Firing report obtained by PT&T and available to the department for free, is not totally accurate as Roberts maintains, it now appears it will be as correct as that which will be produced for the department.

For the report delivered to Lanterman not only declares the feasibility for such a survey to be "questionable" because many disabled persons will be reluctant to participate but asserts that the dialing survey will produce "sizeable errors" and "will not have a high degree of reliability."

Furthermore, the study suggests a lack of need for any survey and asserts the benefits to be gained would not outweigh the costs of the survey.

Goblin tricks not for pet

Goblins, spooks, and other scary creatures can temporarily amuse, haunt and harry part of the people population. Pets, however, shouldn't be included. A child dressed in goblin gear might suddenly spook a neighbor's dog (or even his own) only to have the bewildered, confused canine respond with a deadly serious attack. At best, dogs would be frightened and bewildered. Cats would generally respond by being spooked and fleeing but a few frightened felines cornered by a goblin-geared tiny tot might strike out in fear. Since pets can't see the humor in Halloween, nor properly participate, they're best protected from trick-or-treaters and other eerie events of the evening.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Always before we have taken him. But this time Scooter, our cat, has to remain behind. He's getting on in years but holds together well. The question we can't resolve is should we leave him at the hospital during this three-week trip or have some kind of pet sitter come in to care for him. He's familiar with the hospital, of course, but if he had his druthers he wouldn't spend three hours there, let alone three weeks. What would you advise? — J.D.

DEAR J.D.: Since cats are especially home-oriented, and older cats even more so, a pet sitter is probably the best choice. However, Scooter's doctor should be notified. The pet sitter should, of course, be told to keep close track and scoot Scooter in for a checkup should he miss more than one meal, be having elimination problems or in any other respect appear ill.

If Scooter is at the point where he needs constant geriatric care or if he has a medical problem requiring daily treatment and supervision, a hospital stay would be preferable to the sitter arrangement. The advantage is that expert medical supervision and immediate and specific treatment, if indicated, would outweigh the advantage of the home environment.

"I race because I enjoy racing, not because I want to die. When a car responds to me, it's a fantastic feeling. That's why I returned, not because I am especially brave but because I need that feeling. When a fine woman breaks your heart, do you stop pursuing them? No. Is that bravery? No. You do what you must."

Your Birthday, Oct. 25, 1977

Creative and artistic ventures are favored for you this coming year. Follow your urges along these lines and they could open up new vistas for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone may try to set a snare for you in an important matter today. To escape the trap, call on your experience and keep your wits about you. Find out who you're romantically suited to by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Pressing your mate to emulate someone else would be a mistake today. He or she wouldn't fit another's mold any more than you would.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Though you get along well with most people today, avoid those with whom you've had trouble in the past. They could cause some problems.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're better at handling finances today than yesterday, and you could accumulate a few bucks. Caution: Don't let any bills come past due.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If there's something you're doing that hasn't produced the desired results, get off it now. You can find better ways to deal with the situation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Follow your better judgment and your instincts today. Going against either will create chaos rather than order and accomplishment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may do something that's a departure from your usual method today. It's a bit of a gamble, but if you're a good actor you can pull it off.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't close your mind today, even though you're creative and imaginative yourself. Others could contribute something to embellish your ideas.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be patient in business involvements today. Conditions that surround them are good, but you could lose out by wanting your payday right now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Tolerance with others careerwise is a must for you today. You could judge them a little too hastily and too harshly.

Ann Landers

There's a reason for safety caps

Dear Ann Landers: I need help with a problem involving my husband. He is a food inspector. This is not his profession — it's his neurosis.

He loves homemade bread and biscuits and I bake almost every day. He examines every slice of bread and every biscuit for "mold." Before he will touch his salad he goes over the lettuce with a magnifying glass — looking for "worms." He stirs his coffee several times to see if there is a fly or a gnat in it.

Whenever I serve fish he sniffs it and usually asks for fried eggs instead, because "the fish doesn't smell right." I keep telling him fish smells like fish. He replies, "Some fish smells more like fish than other fish."

It's bad enough that he does this at home, but when we go to mother's house for dinner he acts the same way. Although Mom has never said anything, I know it upsets her. What can I do about it? — Alpena, Mich.

Dear Alpena: It is impossible to do anything about someone else's neurosis. You can, however, do something about your reaction to it. Tell yourself it's HIS problem and his squirrely behavior in no way reflects you.

Explain to Sherlock that you don't mind when he inspects the food at home, but when he does it elsewhere it can be unnerving to the hostess. She has no way of knowing if he has found something — or if he is only looking.

Dear Ann Landers: Twice in the last month we admitted to our acute care unit young children who had visited their grandmothers. In both instances, the grandmother had been using a common red liquid furniture polish. In an effort to avoid the safety cap on the original container, they transferred the polish into a soda pop bottle.

Toddlers assume that any sweet-smelling red liquid in a pop bottle is meant for drinking. In the past five years we have treated 12 children who drank this same furniture polish and two of them died.

Please, Ann Landers, tell your readers that safety caps were placed on certain products because they are frequent killers of children. I hope every mother who reads this column will ask herself, "How could I deal with the guilt and heartache if my child died because I was thoughtless and negligent?" — D.R.O., M.D., Asst. Prof. Pediatrics at Duke U. Med School

Dear Prof: Thanks for a letter that should jolt a few million mamas out of their lethargy. And please say hello to Dr. Jay Arena down there at Duke. He's been one of my star pediatric consultants for several years.

Dear Ann Landers: Mom has a part-time job. She keeps her extra money for family gifts in a mayonnaise jar on a high shelf. Last week my 15-year-old sister got into the jar and took $12 to buy a blouse that was on sale. She plans to pay it back out of her allowance — a couple of dollars at a time. Mom hasn't missed the money yet but she might. My conscience bothers me. Should I tell? — Little Sis

Dear Sis: You've done nothing wrong so there is nothing to feel guilty about. Finking is wrong so keep quiet. If you feel like talking I suggest you tell your mom that keeping money in a mayonnaise jar makes about as much sense as keeping mayonnaise in a bank.

Playing the Hall of Fame game

It is with suitably becoming modesty that I announce that at long last I have been elected to the Hall of Fame. The vote was unanimous — me being the only member — and a suitable plaque is being designed. I am now a proud member of the Right-handed Dog-Walkers of W. Sixth Street Hall of Fame and entitled to all the honors and privileges thereto appertaining.

Being elected to (and organizing) halls of fame is the latest craze to sweep the nation, threatening to outdo hula hoops in popularity and Congress in lunacy. At last count there were more than 750 halls of fame in this country — if you're not in at least ONE, you are pretty small potatoes.

Paul Soderberg, who is preparing a study on halls of fame for Jacques Cattell Press, says there are some 50,000 Americans in halls of fame. (He is in the Halls of Fame Study Preparers Hall of Fame.) They range from architects to zoo-keepers and include halls of fame for horseshoe pitchers, bus drivers, mothers and left-handed mechanics. There are 10 Wrestling Halls of Fame!

Some of the institutions are large and famous — the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., for example. Others are less well-known — the Exotic Dancers Hall of Fame in Los Angeles, the Count Dracula Society Hall of Fame (four members), the Piano Technicians Hall of Fame, the American Polled Hereford Hall of Fame.

Soderberg opines that halls of fame are America's way of bestowing democratic honor on outstanding individuals. When the original colonies broke away from Great Britain, they also gave up earls and dukes and Knights of the Garter and Orders of the British Empire. We don't even have an "honours list." The U. S. Constitution prohibits royal titles and appointments in America, so we have come up with the ubiquitous Hall of Fame.

Not that enshrinement is always sought or even desired. Some halls of fame have trouble getting prospective immortals to agree to immortality. And it's not always permanent; some years ago the Great Billiard Players Hall of Fame was disbanded when police raided the pool hall of fame.

Soderberg says the first "official" and permanent hall of fame was the Hall of Fame for Great Americans organized in New York City in 1901. It was not until the 1950s that the boom got under way; the number of halls tripled in that decade, and the growth is continuing. There is a Dog Musers Hall of Fame, and halls of fame for roller skaters, radio announcers, black soft-ball players, truck drivers, Cherokee Indians, inventors and window washers. (I wonder if there is a hall of fame for newspaper columnists.)

So, get busy and organize your OWN hall of fame — don't just SIT there. (Maybe you could set up a Sitters Hall of Fame.)

Dr. Lamb

One pressure test not enough

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 56 years old and feel just great. However, I was in a department store last week and had my blood pressure taken for a dollar. The attendant said it was just a little high. I live on a pension and cannot afford to go to a doctor all the time to have this problem checked.

Can you tell me what I can do daily to keep my blood pressure down as this might be a problem as I get older.

DEAR READER — A single blood pressure measurement is not a very good index of what your pressure usually is. That is why doctors often take several determinations if the reading is high. So don't put too much faith in that one reading which was "just a little high." For mildly elevated blood pressure the best treatment is often weight control, exercise and limiting salt intake. That may solve the problem for many.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have my cholesterol down from 325 to 225, but I have been told that I have bad circulation in my legs and they ache every morning. Is there anything I can do to reduce the hardening in my arteries?

DEAR READER — Your description of your legs aching in the morning bothers me. Leg pains from poor circulation are more apt to occur with exertion, although it is true that in some disorders of circulation muscle cramps can occur without exertion. If you can walk and exert yourself normally I would think that it is less likely that your aching legs are due to poor circulation.

I am not disagreeing with your doctor's statement that you have poor circulation but perhaps your interpretation that this causes your morning leg aches is not correct. You might ask him if you can see a specialist in orthopedics to evaluate your leg discomfort.

Jim: "If he tries the diamond finesse it will work, but he will still have to lose a trump."

Oswald: "There is another reason for the club lead being correct. Even if West has the ace of clubs, South might pick up a doubleton queen of trumps and still make the hand."

Tri-community candidates

This is the sixth in a series of statements presented by candidates for five city council seats in the proposed Rancho Cucamonga election in Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda Nov. 8.

STEVEN W. SMITH

Cucamonga School District board member Steven W. Smith is running for the Rancho Cucamonga council because he believes in the incorporation effort.

"There seems to be no lack of evidence that we need local control as a city, instead of ineffective disinterest from afar," said Smith.

"I am running for councilman because I enjoy public service, and my educational background has prepared me to evaluate information, issues, and problems and come to a sound decision," he continued.

Smith said his top priority, if elected, would be expansion of police services and better growth planning.

"Our new city council can prevent overgrowth like we're now experiencing, with clogged sewage plants, congested streets and markets, overcrowded schools, and an alarming increase in crimes," he said.

Smith, a pharmaceutical consultant with Ives Laboratories, lives at 9922 Alpine St. in Cucamonga.

MYRA ROY

Myra Roy has been a resident of Cucamonga for 15 years. She is married and the mother of three children, ages 6, 9 and 12.

She attended Chaffey College and is involved in community youth organizations. Mrs. Roy has been a board member, manager and coach of Little League, Miss Softball America and originator of Alta Loma, Cucamonga, and Etiwanda T-Ball. She is a coach with AYSO soccer.

Mrs. Roy's reasons for becoming a candidate for councilman are:

To establish a better community for the people, for women to have a voice in local government and to obtain a balance of representation. Her chief concerns include overcrowded school conditions. Big developers should contribute to financing schools to help alleviate property tax increases, she said. Other issues which concern Mrs. Roy include health and safety; street improvements; necessary city services, such as parks and recreation; zoning regulations; and better law enforcement.

CARL P. STARK

Carl P. Stark would rather see Alta Loma incorporate by itself, but is running for the Rancho Cucamonga council anyway.

"I feel full success from the efforts I put forth to serve in the foundation of principles and development of this municipality," said Stark.

A landscape construction manager, Stark is a resident of Alta Loma.

For the last 16 years he has been involved in a wide range of construction projects, from high rise buildings to domestic water processing plants.

Administrative leadership will be important in the new city, Stark said.

"Good management of supply and demand are the supporting factors of fair and economic support," he said.

Stark resides at 8051 Beechwood Drive.

PHILLIP SCHLOSSER

Cucamonga Chamber of Commerce President Phillip D. Schlosser supports the creation of Rancho Cucamonga.

"I supported the incorporation of the tri-communities from the beginning. I believe the tri-communities should be a balanced city, providing a healthy environment and a strong economy for its citizens," said Schlosser.

A resident of the area since 1970, Schlosser operates his own business, Schlosser Forge Co., in Cucamonga.

He said he supports the two-tier local government concept, with Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda each having a citizen advisory council, which would study local concerns and make recommendations to the elected council.

Among the priorities seen by Schlosser are recreational facilities, including "equestrian, bike and hiking trails and parks."

"Last, but not least, the tri-communities require the best affordable police protection," he said.

Schlosser and his wife, Elaine, are residents of 7874 Buena Vista Drive in Cucamonga.

HEW is target for jokes

ATLANTA (AP) — It was only a joke, but dozens of women who heard an imposter say the Department of Health, Education and Welfare had ruled all Southern marriages since 1957 invalid did not laugh.

On Wednesday, a man identified as Brennan Thomas of HEW was a guest on the Ludlow Porch show, aired by Atlanta radio station WRNG.

During the interview, Brennan said HEW had determined that all marriages performed in the South since 1957 were invalid.

"You wouldn't believe the hysteria it caused," one regional HEW official said. "Boy, did we get a bunch of calls. People think HEW controls marriage licenses, too."

Joe Juska, head of public affairs for the regional office, said the HEW information center in Atlanta received about 30 telephone calls, including one from a woman who said "she thought her mother was having a stroke after finding out her grandchildren were illegitimate."

Porch said he often does humorous interviews with friends playing fictional characters. He said the shows are done "absolutely straight" except for a disclaimer at the end of the program telling listeners they have just heard "a Ludlow Porch Wacko Production."

"The last time I jumped on HEW in a light-hearted manner, I had a guest who said he was here with a $1.7 million grant to change the names of Southern cities," Porch said.

Special exhibit surveys new avant-garde art

By C.G. McDANIEL
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The frequently mystifying, often irritating, but almost always exciting art of the past decade is surveyed by the Museum of Contemporary Art in celebration of its own 10th anniversary.

This lively little museum has been dedicated to the avant-garde since its inception, and until recently had no permanent collection, devoting itself exclusively to changing exhibitions.

This survey includes the work of 80 artists and encompasses the most notable of the varied trends of the period — minimalism, conceptualism, ecological art, earthworks, bodyworks, funk-fantasy, video art, imagism, photorealism.

What has been most striking is the absence of any dominant national or international style during the decade.

The earlier decades of the century have usually had an identifiable style which captured the fancy of artists and the public. The post-World War II decades have been dominated by op, pop and abstract expressionist styles.

But this decade, including the war in Vietnam, has been marked by protest and rebellion, a tearing-down of old icons, a turning-inward. This has resulted in anti-art and intensely private expressions of artistic vision.

The work of most of the artists represented in the exhibition has been shown previously at the museum. Different examples of their work, however, have been selected for the anniversary show.

Public outrage has greeted the work of the minimalists and conceptualists, as it frequently has that of the earthworks and the ecological artists.

As a curator at another museum was overheard to remark about an exhibition, "There is less there than meets the eye."

This, unfortunately, is too often true of the work of the artists in these controversial styles, and the Contemporary's exhibition does little to elucidate these styles.

Some of the most interesting work is that of the photorealists, who paint in great detail and realistically. Catherine Murphy's "View of World Trade Center from Rose Garden" is an exquisite example of this style. And Ralph Goings' "One Eleven Diner," with its Age of Plastic anomie, is another.

Thomas Kovachevich is represented by a beautifully done canvas depicting a fantasy world reminiscent of childhood books and postcards in which animals are dressed as humans doing human things. This picture features a gorilla dressed in a long black satin dress drinking a soft drink.

Ed Paschke's "Blue Flamingo" is another of his brightly colored side-show creatures and is an example of the Chicago imagist style.

Among other artists represented in this landmark exhibition are: Lucas Samaras, Kenneth Noland, Frank Stella, Christo, Donald Judd, Alan Sonst, Judd Fine, Keith Sonnier, Chris Burden, Vito Acconci, Philip Pearlstein, Larry Poons, Jules Olitski, Chuck Close and Robert Irwin.

Study hints new living patterns

WASHINGTON (AP) — High marriage and divorce rates and the trend of unmarrieds to live together is changing what was once the typical American family, a new report shows.

Dr. Paul C. Glick and Arthur J. Norton, Census Bureau demographers who specialize in statistics on the family and marriage, said in a report released Wednesday that these new living patterns reflect significant changes in Americans' attitudes about conforming to traditional behavior.

At the same time, they added, marriage and childbearing are in no way going out of style. Recent trends of postponing marriage and childbirth indicate that people may be giving them more thought before making final decisions.

Highlights of the report show:

—The American marriage rate is one of the highest in the world. As of May 1977, there were nine marriages per 1,000 persons in a year.

—The divorce rate is the highest in the world. As of May 1977, there were five divorces per 1,000 persons in a year.

—Close to 40 per cent of all marriages of young adults are expected to end in divorce.

TRIP says 'shunpike' dangers are many

WASHINGTON (AP) — It may be more picturesque, nostalgic and even romantic, but "shunpiking" should be shunned, advises an authority on driving.

In this age of interstate highway travel, it's a diversion to "shunpike," or take the back roads that parallel modern, multi-lane highways.

Those who got their first taste of cross-country driving before the interstates remember the narrow, two-lane roads that weaved from town to town, past apple orchards and billowing wheat fields and windmills that seemed, to a youngster's eyes, to "jump" from one side of the road to the other as the road curved sharply toward them.

A shunpike tour can still be a welcome change, but The Road Information Program (TRIP), a non-profit research agency here, warns that it adds significantly to driving costs and poses dangers, too.

Half the 3.8 million miles of roads in the country are deficient, and most of those are in out-of-the-way rural areas, the agency says.

TRIP estimates that bad roads increase driving costs 48 percent over those in good condition because frequent slowing and stopping waste gasoline, and rough surfaces shorten the lifespan of steering and suspension systems and other parts.

That means the typical motorist pays an extra $91 a year to drive over deficient roads. Since most bad roads are in rural areas, a back-road tour can be costly, TRIP cautions.

Bad roads do more than increase auto operating costs, TRIP says that, after human error, they're the second leading cause of auto accidents. The agency blames road deficiencies for 3.5 million accidents, or 21.4 percent of the total, and $40.5 billion in losses in 1975.

"Interstate highways are often cursed as swaths of concrete designed to level mountains, dam streams and destroy neighborhoods," says H.W. Reece, the agency's president. "The system is not without its faults, but on balance most people would agree it has been an enormous benefit to society. It moves traffic quickly, safely and economically."

Statistics bear him out. The Federal Highway Administration has found that interstate accident rates are half those of other roads. That's because of their high design standards, which include separated traffic lanes, firm shoulders and gentle curves, Reece adds.

Even the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit has not helped back roads, TRIP reports. Since the limit was introduced in 1974, interstate fatality rates have dropped 37.6 percent, but the decline on local roads and streets was only 3.8 percent.

Not all good roads have to be interstates, says Reece. Safe design features can be incorporated into less-traveled roads and streets, but it would be an enormous undertaking and probably require a national consensus similar to that which supported the space program, he explains.

"The interstate system can be likened to a classroom or laboratory," says Reece. "It's taught us all we have to know about making roads safe and less costly to use."

Moguls fight back

Hollywood luring slice of the pie

EDITOR'S NOTE: Hollywood trying to lure movies to Hollywood? The film moguls of an older time would have thought the idea outlandish, but this is a newer time. So many other states are trying to grab a slice of the production pie that California is forced to fight back.

By NORMAN GOLDSTEIN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — States from Georgia to Montana, Texas to Virginia have discovered the treasure of the Hollywood Hills and set out to entice movie and television producers to their backyards.

The picture-poaching has reached the point where California, long the undisputed center, has set up a commission to beat back the raiders, as have several cities in the state.

"We realized we were losing $100 million in annual revenue going from our state to theirs," says Liz Brady, executive director of California's Film Development Council. And that figure, she says, is conservative, involving only direct revenue.

Considering the money spent by film companies for car rentals, hotels, restaurants, lumber, services and the like, the loss to the state's economy could be as high as $375 million a year, quite a kick in the coffer to the state where movies grew up.

The California film council started work 1½ years ago to counter the activities of some 30 film commissions in other states that are busily luring film business away from the Hollywood precincts.

Miss Brady says her agency has managed to wrest some of the business back through devices ranging from issuing permits for filmmakers to shoot in state parks to frequent soul sessions with film executives.

California has set aside $120,000 this year for its bring 'em back alive project. Other states have already been spending millions of dollars collectively to lure film budgets from Hollywood's backlots.

The Motion Picture Association of America says that more than 20 states have fullfledged film commissions. Most of the others have at least one official, usually within the department of commerce or tourism, to handle film development within their borders.

The Navajo Reservation of Arizona-New Mexico boasts a film commission.

"They're all trying to get our business," says Lou Rachmil, vice president and production manager at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. "They come out here. Sometimes the governor comes out with them, and they do a very good sell. They turn loose their best people. They open doors. It's a very helpful situation."

The scramble began in the late 1960s, when the industry began to look for sites outside Hollywood because of audience demand for greater realism, high overhead at the studios and other reasons, says Bill McCallum of the Arizona Motion Picture Development Office. Arizona grossed $5 million business in fiscal 1976-77. Its film office has a budget of $109,000 this year.

In terms of revenue, the Texas Film Commission, a division of the governor's office, is a giant. Director Pat Wolfe says it's drawn $60 million in film production in the past two years.

Eighteen major films were shot, partly or wholly, in Texas last year and 13 more through the summer of 1977. They include "Semi-Tough" and "The Bad News Bears Breaking Training." Both made use of Texas sports stadiums.

The states compete briskly among themselves. New Jersey hired the public relations firm of Rogers and Cowan, which specializes in entertainment industry accounts, to tout its wares.

Primarily, says Henry Rogers, they try to persuade producers that it can be done cheaper in Jersey.

New York is working hard to accommodate filmmakers and recently allowed a company to burn down a derelict building in Brooklyn for the movie

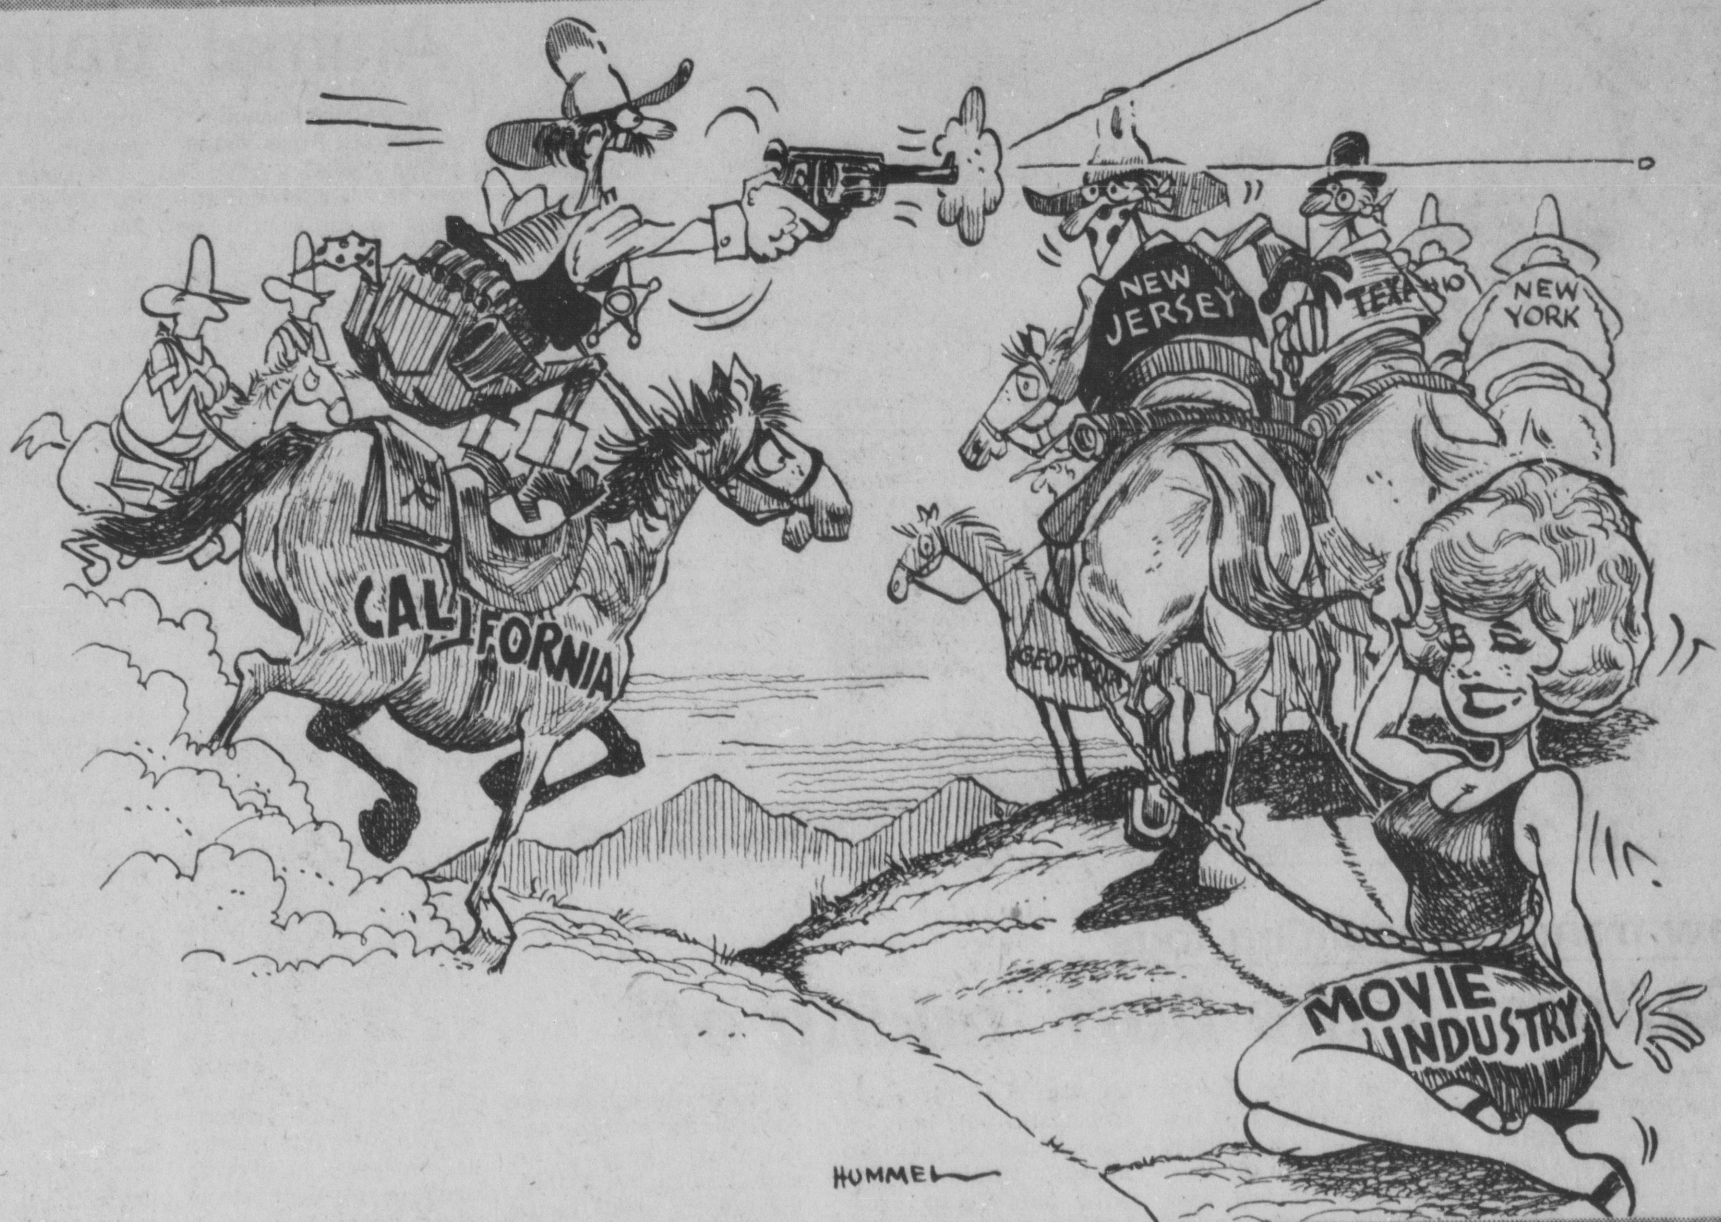

"Nunzio." It meant money for a far from affluent neighborhood and jobs for kids as extras. In addition, the company shelled out part of the replacement costs of the building.

Ohio made $1 million last year from filmmakers attracted by the state film bureau's promotion. That includes use of a north-eastern Ohio community, Chagrin Falls, for a New England setting sought by a television film crew.

Ed Spivia of the Georgia Film Office, one of the more active in the country, says the Peach State has drawn more than 100 television and feature films in the past five years. It's meant about $100 million.

Georgia made a maximum security prison available for Paramount's "The Longest Yard," starring Burt Reynolds. For the filming of another Reynolds movie, "Deliverance," the Georgia Power Co. cut off the flow of the Chattooga River so the crews could pull boats into positions required.

The sequel to it all? Arizona's Bill McCallum looks forward to increasing state raids on the movie business for years to come. California's Liz Brady says the state, never one to share top billing for its prime industry — much less with 49 other stars — will continue to fight off the rustlers and fence off its grazing land once again.

Greek-style

Democracy European imperialist invention?

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A French Marxist philosopher has touched off a controversy by attacking the classic conception of ancient Greece as the cradle of democracy.

Roger Garaudy, who contends the historical accounts of ancient Greece's triumphs were a "European imperialist invention," first made his comments while in Greece to attend a socialist symposium. His views were then serialized in an Athens newspaper and critically taken up in a new interview by another paper.

"The democracy of Pericles, which was based on the raw exploitation of 400,000 slaves, to me does not differ greatly from today's South Africa," Garaudy said.

The newspaper angrily concluded: "So the history of ancient Greece is being turned into a myth. We are lucky they still allow us Sophocles and Euripides. Our progressive friends ... seem to prefer Greece without any history. Just sunshine, sea, wine and bouzouki music."

Garaudy described Herodotus, the ancient Greek historian, as a bought-off writer.

"Herodotus is someone whose testimony I don't pay too much attention to. He loved money and wrote much when paid well," Garaudy said.

Garaudy, a former member of the French

Communist party, did accept, however, that apart from the alleged slaves there was genuine democracy among the rest of the population in the 5th-century B.C. "Golden Age of Pericles."

Greek historians, however, refuse to describe as slaves those who, for example, pulled the enormous marble pillars that built the Acropolis monuments and which stand today as a symbol of the roots of Western civilization. They are described as workers who ate and lived with their superiors.

Greek President Constantine Tsatsos, considered one of the country's most prominent men of letters, in a recent article indirectly replying to Garaudy, attacked such criticism of ancient Greece. He described Marxism-Leninism as "the latest stage of romanticism" and appealed for an international "return to the spirit of Acropolis." He said that era witnessed the most successful balance of all political and cultural trends, peaceably reflected in its art.

Tsatsos has written the prologue to French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing's book on democracy.

Garaudy also doubted historic accounts of the 490 B.C. Battle of Marathon and 480 B.C. naval battle of Salamis. In both cases history has it that the outnumbered Greeks managed to heavily defeat the invading Persians.

Such events have been held sacred in Western teaching as symbolic of the spirit of democracy and civilization against force and barbarism. Garaudy said the example had been inversely taken to justify Western European imperialism and "protective intervention" in other areas.

Garaudy added that only a minority of ancient Greeks could claim the virtues credited to the era.

At the Battle of Marathon, 30,000 Persians were routed by 10,000 Greeks when their expected support from the sympathizers of a local Greek dictator did not materialize.

Garaudy finally found it acceptable to describe the ancient king and military campaigner Alexander the Great (356-323 B.C.) only as "Mr. Alexander" and said the Chinese civilization of that same time was far worthier of glorification.

The great leg debate is on

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Bills, cheerleaders for the Buffalo Bills football team, challenged the Dallas Cowboys' cheerleaders to a match to prove who had the best legs in the National Football League.

Dallas said no. "I guess they feel they've got everything to lose and nothing to win," said Chris Sullivan of the Buffalo squad. "They've got a winning team and great uniforms and they feel pretty comfortable as things are without taking risks."

Suzanne Mitchell, director of the Cowboy cheerleaders, said the foot race would merely prove who had the strongest legs.

"We never claimed to have the strongest legs," she said. "We do think we have the prettiest, but we never claimed that either — people just told us that."

New trends in yachting togs

Sailors in the buff 'taking off'

SALTWHISTLE BAY, ST. VINCENT, W.I. (AP) — The boat gurgled through the water, flamboyantly hued as a drowned peacock, around the point and toward the anchorage.

"Any French flags?" I asked son Clarke, who had the binoculars.

"Over there."

I turned the boat in that direction while he willingly went forward to ready the anchor.

In five months of cruising the Caribbean we had become as avid in searching for the Tricolor as that old English seadog, Lord Nelson, had been almost two centuries before. He, of course, was interested in finding French men-of-war. We were more curious about France's latest revolutionaries, women of yachting. Topless women.

It is not confined to the French. But the odds are higher that if you spot a French flag on a yacht these days, you'll see a yachtswoman going about her nautical chores without benefit of a topsail.

We moored a discreet distance from the Gallic sailboat, a discreet distance being not too close to be deemed Peeping Toms but not too far to be out of spyglass range. Having three crewmen aboard of about 20 years, I had no other choice.

Who the first midshipwomen was to shed her top has not been recorded. Maybe the Si-rens who beckoned to Ulysses. But the custom today arose along the Riviera. Apparently, it has been gradually moving up the Antillean chain of islands and has been an occasional sighting as far north as Block Island, R.I.

Columbus, of course, discovered almost everything in the Caribbean but the Modified American Plan. He also reported back to Isabella that the native Arawak ladies did not shield their thoracic regions from the sun.

Rounding into English Harbor in Antigua to observe that island's annual Race Week, we found

New life for aging bobcat

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Spitfire, the aging bobcat who nearly starved to death in the forests of Cameron County last winter, has retired to the Pittsburgh Zoo.

The cat was found suffering from acute malnutrition and a face full of porcupine quills and was nursed back to health by Cameron County game protector Norm Erickson.

Erickson had hoped to release the bobcat back into the wilderness, but decided a few days ago that Spitfire probably could not survive another winter in the wild.

"He's an old cat and already has lost his eye teopleness so far as the binoculars could see. The sight of blazered race committee officials mingling with unblazered crew-ladies was one that would have caused that grand old America's Cup campaigner, Sir Thomas Lipton, to swoon into his tea cup.

One skipper had an all-girl crew. Five of them, all unwashed from amishships up. He also had the slowest boat in his class.

Bill Robinson, editor of "Yachting" magazine, managed to do a photo essay on Race Week without disclosing any nudity, a masterpiece of camera work.

Whether all this means teeth. He wouldn't be able to hold onto anything he might have a chance to catch without those teeth. That's probably why he was nearly starved when picked up last winter," Erickson said.

"I feel it's better to let him finish out his days where he'll be fed regularly and won't have to be chasing rabbits or grubbing for mice in the deep snow," he said.

Animal trainer braves danger

By Patrick Connolly
Associated Press Writer
SEATTLE (AP) — Gunther Gebel-Williams rolled up his sleeves, exposed the scars on his forearm and took the blame for fangs and claws that have torn his flesh for years.

"Accidents happen," says the animal trainer for Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus. "See all my hands are bitten through. Here is an accident, here," he said, pointing to a trail of thick flesh. "Last month in Los Angeles the animal was tired and I tried to push it too far."

A single claw lashed out during a show, gouging his arm. It took 40 stitches to mend. "Not so bad," he said.

Gebel-Williams, 43, is in charge of 18 tigers, 19 leopards, two pumas, 17 elephants and two dozen horses for the circus. One of his trademarks is caring for the animals personally in the ring and behind the scenes. He runs constantly.

Many circus-goers regard the blond, onetime acrobat with awe because he succeeds in getting tigers to ride the backs of their natural prey — horses and elephants; he pulls big cats by their tails across the floor; he drapes a cougar over his shoulders like a shawl and strolls outside the center ring cage with it toward startled patrons; he lies down among cougars.

Dr. Dan Laughlin, veterinarian at the Brookfield Zoo near Chicago and a circus consultant, said the cats have full fangs and claws and no drugs are administered to cool them down. "It's a matter of pride with him."

"He risks his life every time he enters the cage," said Laughlin, who has worked with most major circuses in the country. "He is the best at this time."

Youngsters who want to become animal trainers after seeing the circus "see only the glimmer and the nice things, but it is a lot of hard work, 24 hours a day sometimes," said Gebel-Williams.

"You treat animals like kids. You know you cannot always say to your kids, 'You're a nice guy. We love you.' You cannot treat the kids only with love. You have sometimes to take them by the hair and say, 'Now is enough!' I think respect is everything. Absolute."

He is a native of Germany. His wife, Sigrid, performs in a horse act and daughter, Tina, 14, performs with horses and elephants. His 7-year-old son, Buffy, sometimes rides an elephant.

"A teacher travels with us, so the children have school in the morning and circus in the afternoon. We really don't have time to do many things and sometimes we feel guilty for the kids because we have not time for them," said Gebel-Williams.

"I think at the kids' age now, it is a big enjoyment. They see the glitter. They find out later how hard it is."

He began with a German circus as an acrobat when he was 12 and has known no other life.

Experimental college: 'no teachers allowed'

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — The Experimental College says it has no teachers and no courses but teaches its students how to grow marijuana, build an atomic bomb and play a banjo.

"No Teachers Allowed!" reads its catalogue. They've been replaced by "resources persons."

Instead of courses, the college has "learning collectives."

The college is run by students at the University of Connecticut.

In addition to its controversial marijuana and atomic bomb course, the school teaches: massage, welding, yoga, automobile electrical systems, belly dancing, Marxism and social change, hair cutting, bread baking, batik, basketmaking, vegetarian cooking, sewing and star gazing.

"Traditional schoolrooms on all levels are impersonal and authoritarian," the college's catalogue says. It compares obtaining a traditional education to "buying a Big Mac."

Emmons Welch, a mechanic who works with the college, says: "The bad thing about teachers isn't that they know a lot, it's that they bring an arbitrary kind of authority that tends to alienate people."

"We do recognize that we need experts, or at least persons with more experience," he said. But he pointed out that teachers don't chart the course of learning experience at the college — collective participants do.

The catalogue says the message collective "is a group of people who meet to share the experience of touch. Ordinarily, the need for space between us limits the opportunity to touch one another."

LAKER THIEVERY

Newly acquired guard Lou Hudson (23) reaches through the legs of Phoenix Suns' guard Paul Westphal to knock the ball away in Sunday's Laker loss to the visiting Suns.

Rams square off vs. old nemesis

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Although the Los Angeles Rams have been a comparatively successful football team in recent years, they haven't had much success against their opponent in tonight's nationally televised game, the Minnesota Vikings.

CHANNEL 7, 6 P.M.

The meetings between these two hard-hitting National Football Conference foes have been characterized by close scores and Minnesota victories. In their 10 contests since 1969, the Bud Grant-coached Vikings show an 8-1-1 record against Los Angeles, which has been coached by George Allen, Tommy Prothro and Chuck Knox during that span.

And Minnesota, which has played in four Super Bowls — losing all — during Grant's tenure, made it there three times by whipping the Rams in the playoffs.

Both Grant and Knox, whose teams played to a 10-10 regular season tie last year before the Vikings bounced back with a 24-13 triumph in the NFC Championship game, expect another tight game.

"We wound up in an overtime tie last year, and then beat the Rams in a close game for the NFC championship," said Grant. "And the preseason game this year went down to the final minutes before it was decided on a blocked punt."

"Our games against the Rams are very, very close."

"We'll have to play our best football of the year to beat Minnesota," said Knox. "We have to put some points on the board and we'll have to put pressure on the quarterback."

Kings face Canucks minus Rogie Vachon

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Kings return to action at Vancouver against the Canucks Tuesday night without goalie Rogie Vachon, who was admitted to Centinela Valley Hospital Sunday night for precautionary testing.

Vachon was knocked out after being struck in the side of the head by a shot by Cleveland's Bob Murdoch last Wednesday night. Vachon missed Los Angeles' 4-3 National Hockey League loss to Boston Saturday night, but was expected to return to action against Vancouver.

A Kings' spokesman said Vachon improved the first two days after the injury, but began complaining of increased dizziness Friday night.

The Kings recalled goalie Mario Lessard from their Springfield, Mass., farm club of the American Hockey League.

There was no indication as to how long Vachon would be hospitalized or sidelined. It is hoped he will be available when the Kings host the New York Islanders Wednesday night, the spokesman said.

The Kings will try to snap a two-game losing streak against the Canucks.

Los Angeles now has a 2-2-1 record after its loss to the Bruins. The Canucks are 2-1-2.

Lakers struggle at home

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

INGLEWOOD — The Lakers' home debut was a disappointment all the way around.

Even without Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and the best two of their three first-round draft choices, the Lakers should have won the game they blew to the Phoenix Suns, 104-101, Sunday night before an announced crowd of 10,481 (of which 3000 must have come dressed as empty seats).

The Lakers outscored the Suns, 30-12, in the first quarter and led by 24 points, 62-38, at the half.

But rookie center James Edwards fouled out and the Suns, with Paul Westphal scoring 19 of his game-high 26 points in the second half, outscored the Lakers, 33-15, in the third period and 33-24 in the fourth. "I don't think we can play any better than we did the first half," said coach Jerry West. "The second half was just the opposite."

"It's very disturbing the way we blew the big lead we built up by half-time. The reason is obvious. It was very, very poor ball handling."

West's team had a total of 31 turnovers. But 19 of them came in the second half and resulted in 20, count 'em, 20 Phoenix points.

The Lakers threw the ball away six times in the second half and the Suns stole the ball six more!

Rookie Brad Davis, who was subbing for injured rookie Norm Nixon, threw the ball away twice and gave it up once more on a charging foul in the first two and a half minutes of the third quarter.

Davis could be forgiven. But there was also a bad pass by Kermit Washington and two by Jamaal Wilkes. Wilkes also had the ball stolen from him by Don Buse.

The lead had been cut to seven points, 77-71, by the end of the third quarter. Then the Suns really got larcenous. They stole the ball twice from Earl Tatum and twice from Don Chaney who was in there for defense and experience.

The Suns finally caught up and tied, 81-81, with 8:28 left in the game. It was knotted at 83, 85, 87, 89 and 95 before Phoenix rookie Walter Davis (N. Carolina) put the Suns ahead to stay, 97-95 with his 16th and 17th points of the game.

The Lakers never got within two points again.

Flat Cowboys struggle

Unbeaten Broncs are sky high

By Associated Press

"I don't believe in letdowns," Denver Coach Coach Red Miller shrugged.

Coach Tom Landry and his Dallas Cowboys might do well to listen to the man from the mile-high city.

Miller's Marvels, sky-high after their 30-7 romp over the Oakland Raiders a week ago, might have been forgiven if they'd turned in a lackluster performance in Cincinnati. But on the contrary, they were as tough as ever, with first and second-stringers kicking in to kick the Bengals 24-13.

That left them the only unbeaten team in the National Football League's American Conference. The Cowboys hold that distinction in the National Conference — but it wasn't easy staying that way. After emotional victories over division-rivals St. Louis and Washington the past two weekends, Dallas looked flat against Philadelphia and only a blocked punt, converted into a touchdown, enabled the Cowboys to nose out the Eagles 16-10.

"The mark of a good team is when reserves have to come in," Miller said — and he knew what he was talking about. Craig Morton, who had teamed with Jack Dolbin on an 81-yard go-ahead TD play late in the first half, went out with an injury. The Broncos could have collapsed — but second-year quarterback Craig Penrose kept them moving, directing a 63-yard touchdown drive in the fourth period to lock matters up.

Cowboys 16, Eagles 10

"We're glad to be 6-0 after that one," Landry said of the Cowboys' squeaker in Philadelphia. "We were flat after St. Louis and Washington back-to-back. That takes a lot out of a team."

The Cowboys were sputtering along before Jay Saldi and Charlie Waters woke them up. Saldi blocked a Spike Jones punt in the fourth period and Waters ran the ball 17 yards for what turned out to be the winning touchdown.

Patriots 17, Colts 3

"It wasn't the whole season but it was darn close to it," quarterback Steve Grogan said after he completed 11 of 16 passes for 214 yards and a touchdown against the Colts. "I played a smarter game than I have in a long time."

While Grogan had plenty of time to pass, Bert Jones was kept busy by the Patriots' swarming offense and never got Baltimore moving.

49ers 28, Lions 7

Jim Plunkett, calling his own signals for the first time this season, connected with Gene Washington on first-half touchdown passes of 32 and 35-yards to beat the Lions for San Francisco's first victory of the season.

Chiefs 21, Chargers 16

Kansas City took a lot longer before breaking into the win column.

With barely 2½ minutes to play, San Diego led 16-7. But Tony Reed bulled in from one yard out to cut the margin to two points and, a scant 31 seconds later, safety Tim Gray dashed 16 yards with Rickey Young's fumble for the TD that sent the

Davila slates November bout

LOS ANGELES (AP) — World bantamweight boxers Alberto Davila of Pomona and former champion Rodolfo Martinez of Mexico have signed up for a 12-round title elimination bout at the Olympic Auditorium.

Promoter Aileen Eaton said Tuesday that Martinez, with a 39-4-1 record, will meet Davila, 25-2, on Nov. 17.

Martinez' record includes 29 knockouts. He won the title in 1974 by knocking out Rafael Herrera, then lost it to Carlos Zarate in 1976.

Davila, who has won six fights this year, has nine knockouts.

Chiefs home happy.

Cardinals 49, Saints 31

Mel Gray caught passes from quarterback Jim Hart and running back Terry Metcalf for touchdowns and Wayne Morris scored four times on shortyardage runs in St. Louis' wideopen victory. Bobby Scott passed for two touchdowns for the Saints, who wiped out the Cardinals' 21-0 lead, then fell back again.

Raiders 28, Jets 27

Oakland wiped out the Jets' 27-14 lead as Ken Stabler fired his second and third touchdown passes of the game, fourthquarter strikes to Fred Biletnikoff and Mike Siani. Stabler was virtually overshadowed by New York's young Richard Todd, who threw four TD strikes. A missed extra point by Pat Leahy was the final margin.

Steelers 27, Oilers 10

Pittsburgh quarterback Terry

"We had five or six chances to put the game away," commented West. "But our inability to handle the basketball absolutely destroyed us."

Of course the Lakers coach admitted it would have been nice to have his best player (Jabbar) in there. He also was asked if Nixon, the lightning-quick rookie from Duquesne, would have made a difference.

"He would have made a difference," West said. "He would have run by some people out there."

It must be a little painful for West to watch Davis, the rookie from Maryland. He took Davis out shortly after the rookie made the three turnovers in 2½ minutes.

Davis reportedly barely made the team despite a no-cut contract and the fact that he is a first-round pick.

It was West who was primarily responsible for drafting Davis instead of Michigan's Ricky Green who was immediately gobbled up by the Golden State Warriors.

However, until Davis was removed (he hit only two of eight shots), he had been playing better. But the Lakers sorely miss Nixon.

Tatum should someday be excellent. But right now his passing is like the "little girl who had a little curl right in the middle of her forehead." When Earl is good, he is very good. But when he is bad, he is horrid.

However when Jabbar (broken hand) and Nixon (injured tendon in his ankle) and big, rebounding forward Kenny Carr get well and the two rookies get some experience, the Lakers should indeed be formidable.

"This team is going to play like that for awhile," West said in discussing the game. "They'll make their share of mistakes."

"There's no question we're going to be a very good team. How long it will take, I don't know. I'm not worried about now. Our first goal is to make the playoffs."

Tatum led the Lakers with 20 points (10 of 13 shots) and Washington was next with 16 plus a season-high rebound total of 21 and now has 69 in four games.

The Lakers outshot the Suns, 52 per cent to 38 per cent. But the visitors made 26 of 52 shots in the second half to the Lakers' 16 of 40.

San Antonio comes in Tuesday night.

Browns 27, Bills 16

Brian Sipe passed for two touchdowns, one of them a deflected 52-yarder to Paul Warfield, in Cleveland's victory over Buffalo. The Bills got 99 yards from O.J. Simpson.

Packers 13, Bucs 0

Tampa Bay, in an instant replay of 1976, remains the only winless team in the NFL. The Packers did them in on Chester Marcol's second-period field goals of 40 and 44 yards and Eric Torkelson's five-yard TD run following a third-quarter blocked kick.

Giants 17, Redskins 6

The Giants, who rallied to beat Washington in their opening game of the season, did it again. They wiped out the Redskins' 6-0 halftime lead as Doug Kotar sprinted 17 yards for one TD and Joe Pisarcik passed 23 yards to Jimmy Robinson for another.

Tarkanian claims schools are too afraid of NCAA

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Tactics used by the National Collegiate Athletic Association enforcement staff have silenced criticism from college officials of its disciplinary rulings, charges Jerry Tarkanian, basketball coach at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas.

"Nobody will challenge them," Tarkanian said. "No coach will challenge them. No athletic director will challenge them. They're scared to death."

Tarkanian, a controversial figure whose 87.8 winning percentage is the highest among active coaches, was the center of attention during four hearings that resulted in a two-year probation for his team.

Tarkanian, who attended a Lexington basketball clinic over the weekend, said the ruling was a foregone conclusion because of archaic hearing procedures and the out-of-hand dismissals of the university's sworn affidavits.

Dave Cawood, a NCAA spokesman, said in a telephone conversation from Kansas City that the association would make no comment on Tarkanian's remarks.

The NCAA alleged that Tarkanian arranged for players to fly home on "junkets," chartered flights paid for by Las Vegas hotels; arranged for an athlete to get a passing grade in a course he allegedly did not attend; arranged for an athlete to obtain free clothing from a wholesale store, and that he persuaded witnesses to change their stories to clear him.

Tarkanian said that sworn affidavits showed every charge to be false.

Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nev., has since introduced a House bill calling for an investigation of the NCAA, which Santini said has "unbridled authority."

"What they should investigate is the enforcement staff," Tarkanian said. "I really believe the infractions committee is very honorable people. I think what they have done, though, is they have turned everything over to the enforcement staff, which has so much power they can do anything they want to do."

Tarkanian accused NCAA investigators of trying to find violations with no indication they actually existed.

"They came in and got every parking ticket on our campus. They went through our security and got every ticket," he said. "Our president had to turn them over because you're not cooperating if you don't. They looked to see if any athlete got a ticket and didn't pay for it."

Tarkanian also accused the infractions committee of seeking his ouster as UNLV basketball coach by promising leniency to school officials. But Tarkanian successfully blocked such a move by obtaining a restraining order.

"That's what they tried to do throughout the hearings," Tarkanian said. "We had four hearings in 21 months. Every hearing, they tried to let the university out the back door if they would get rid of me. The university never did."

"We spent $200,000 and the state attorney general had two guys working fulltime at no cost to the university. Everything that they said we did, the attorney general or one of his men and a court reporter flew over and took a deposition from that person. We kept screwing them up."

"This went on for 21 months," he said. "So, finally, they said they don't believe our affidavits. They wouldn't quit. I'm not kidding you."

Tarkanian said NCAA rules are too narrow and serve, in many cases, simply to punish the enforcement staff's enemies.

"Under the present rules, there are violations everywhere," he said. "Every single day there are violations because the rules are such that, even if you're trying to run a 100 per cent straight program, you can't. You can't give a kid a ride home from practice or you can't take a kid to McDonald's for a hamburger. There is a rule they can use to get anybody anytime they want."

Players select Foster, Carew

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Minnesota's Rod Carew and Cincinnati's George Foster, who flirted with magic major league figures, were named today the top players in their leagues by the Sporting News.

Foster, a repeater in the National League, socked 52 home runs and became only the 10th player in the history of baseball to hit 50 or more during one season.

Carew, who for a time hit .400, finished with a batting average of .388 to lead the major leagues and also led both circuits with 128 runs and 239 hits.

Major league players selected Foster and Carew for the honors.

USC now gearing for Pac-8 games

By The Associated Press

The Southern California Trojans, after their humbling 49-19 fall to Notre Dame at South Bend, return to Pacific-8 competition Saturday still considered the favorite in the Rose Bowl race.

But not by much.

"This is a tough conference race. USC has a lot of games to play, and Washington is starting to come around," Washington State Coach Warren Powers noted after his team dropped a pass-filled 31-29 decision Saturday to another conference contender, Stanford's Cardinals.

The Trojans and Washington share the Pac-8 lead with 3-0 records.

Southern Cal's next assignment is in Berkeley against California's Golden Bears, expected to stick with their home blue jerseys despite the success Notre Dame had in switching from their usual blue uniforms to green ones. Washington's Huskies, 14-6 victors over Oregon State Saturday, are on the road to face UCLA next weekend.

UCLA made its Pac-8 record 2-1 by beating California 21-19, dropping the Bears to 1-2. Oregon ventured to Louisiana State and was clobbered 55-17 in a nonconference tilt, while Fresno State won the featured game on the Pacific Coast Athletic Association schedule, totalling 621 offensive yards against favored San Jose State and downing the Spartans 45-24 to take the PCAA lead.

Southern Cal went to South Bend with a No. 5 national ranking but figures to drop far down in the rankings as a result of the loss, which was one-sided mostly because of three lost fumbles, two interceptions and a blocked punt.

"We made an unbelievable amount of mental errors," said Coach John Robinson. "I think our own errors hurt us more than Notre Dame."

Stanford, 2-1 in the Pac-8 and 5-2 for all games, beat Washington State as quarterback Guy Benjamin outdueled WSU's Jack Thompson in a passing battle every bit as good as expected. Benjamin hit for 330 yards and three touchdowns, two to James Lofton, while Thompson had a 19-for-24 performance good for 274 yards and a touchdown.

Washington managed only 282 yards against OSU's defense but held the Beavers to 174 yards. Warren Moon threw a 38-yard touchdown pass to Spider Gaines with 6:40 to play and Cliff Bethea's interception killed a late Beavers' drive.

A blocked punt by UCLA's Marvin Morris, who picked up the football and ran 26 yards to score, sent the Bruins ahead of Cal in the fourth period. Later, Cal had to settle for Jim Breech's fourth field goal of the night, one which gave him a conference-record 45 in his career.

G.P. wreck kills two

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese police began an investigation today into an accident that killed two people and injured 10 during the running of the Japan Grand Prix, the final Formula 1 event of the season.

The race, held at the Fuji International Speedway circuit 90 miles southwest of Tokyo, was won by Britain's James Hunt in a McLaren. Hunt averaged 124.7 miles per hour, touring the 73-lap course in one hour, 31 minutes, 51.68 seconds.

Police were questioning officials and witnesses in an effort to find out why a number of spectators had entered an area between a track guard rail and a spectator barrier. The investigators also sought details of the crash itself in which Gilles Villeneuve of Canada, driving a Ferrari, ran into the Tyrrell driven by Ronnie Peterson of Sweden.

The crash sent Villeneuve's Ferrari spinning into the air, then plunging into the crowd.

Crystal Water sparkles

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Crystal Water, California's leading handicap division horse, does his best work in his home state.

The 4-year-old son of Windy Sands had some difficulties in the east recently but got back into the winner's circle Sunday by winning the $100,000 Oak Tree Invitational before a crowd of 33,233 at Santa Anita.

In only the second grass race of his career, Crystal Water held off the closing charge of Vigors to add $60,000 to his bankroll, bringing his career earnings to $811,827.

Crystal Water, owned by Mrs. Connie Ring, covered 1 1/4 miles on turf in 2:26.2-5 and as the favorite in a field of 10, paid $4.80, $3.40 and $2.80.

Laffit Pincay was scheduled to ride Crystal Water but Bill Shoemaker was named as a replacement last Thursday when Pincay was suspended for five days. Shoemaker recorded his 127th career victory in a race worth $100,000 or more.

Vigors, with Jerry Lambert aboard, returned $3.80 and $2.80 as the second-favorite. Ancient Title, who led much of the way, faded to third under jockey Darrel McHargue and paid $4.20.

No Turning was fourth, followed by Antique, Copper Mel, Pampas Host, Double Discount, Alpha Boy and Announcer. Theologist was scratched. All entries in the weight-for-age event carried 126 pounds except Alpha Boy, the lone 3-year-old, who carried 121 pounds.

Schembechler gets his 'wish'

By Associated Press

This week, Coach Bo Schembechler won't have to ask the media to drop his Michigan Wolverines from the No. 1 position in The Associated Press college football ratings.

Early in the season, despite an unbeaten record, Schembechler said he wished the voters would do him a favor and vote someone else No. 1. They heeded his request when Michigan struggled past Navy 14-7 but a 41-3 rout of highly regarded Texas A&M put the Wolverines back on top and they've been there ever since.

Until last Saturday.

In a stunning upset, Michigan not only was beaten by Minnesota 16-0 but failed to score for the first time in 114 games. That opened the door for second-ranked Texas and the Longhorns fully expect to be No. 1 this week following a 30-14 triumph over Southern Methodist.

"Now that we're No. 1, we're going to have to work to stay there," said kick returner Johnnie Johnson, anticipating this week's AP poll.

Even Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine inquired how the voting might go after the 11th-ranked Irish shocked No. 5 Southern California 49-19, handing the Trojans' their worst pounding since a 51-0 rout at the hands of Notre Dame 11 years ago.

And Alabama's Bear

Bryant, whose third-ranked Crimson Tide walloped Louisville 55-6, had No. 1 on his mind.

"If we just win our games I think we'll win the national championship," he said.

Elsewhere, fourth-ranked Ohio State trimmed Northwestern 35-15, No. 6 Oklahoma flattened No. 16 Iowa State 35-16, No. 18 Nebraska whipped No. 7 Colorado 33-15, No. 8 Kentucky buried Georgia 33-0, No. 9 Arkansas trounced Houston 34-0 and No. 10

Penn State downed West Virginia 49-28.

In the Second Ten, No. 12 Texas A&M beat Rice 28-14, No. 14 Pitt held off Syracuse 28-21, UCLA edged No. 15 California 21-19, No. 17 Brigham Young shaded Wyoming 10-7, No. 19 Florida scored 10 points in the final 1:32 to defeat Tennessee 27-17 and No. 20 Clemson nipped North Carolina State 7-3.

Texas Tech, the No. 13 team, was the only member of the Top Twenty to have the weekend off.

The Red Raiders face Texas next Saturday.

Texas had problems with SMU for a while. The Longhorns fell behind on Mike Ford's 11-yard touchdown pass to Emanuel Tolbert in the second period but scored 20 points in the last six minutes before halftime and were never headed.

Leading the way was Earl Campbell, who rambled through the rain for a career high 213 yards, including a 58-yard touchdown run.

"It took us a quarter to figure out who we were playing," said first-year Texas Coach Fred Akers, who is doing his best to make his legendary predecessor Darrell Royal resemble the title of one of his beloved country songs — "I'm A Memory."

"I was very disappointed in some of our sloppy play," Akers went on, "but then I happened to look at the scoreboard to check the time when they flashed the Michigan score. I was happy to see it — those things happen — and about that time we got into gear."

Michigan never did. The Wolverines were held to just 80 yards on the ground — "That's unheard of," Schembechler said — although junior quarterback Rick Leach became the school's all-time total offense leader.

"The defense (Minnesota's) beat us," Schembechler continued. "That, plus an offense (Michigan's) that never showed its stuff. I've never seen us play that poorly."

Alabama crushed Louisville as Jeff Rutledge hit Ozzie Newsome with touchdown passes.

Allison enjoying A.J.'s castoff

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Donnie Allison is enjoying the finest season of his career, racing the Chevrolet that A.J. Foyt quit as uncompetitive.

"I guess I'm getting a little lucky in my old age," wisecracked the 38-year-old Allison, a Grand National veteran since 1967 when he was voted Rookie of the Year. "Actually I think we're doing so well because our whole team wants to race, enjoys racing, now."

Allison pushed his money winnings over the $100,000 mark for the first season in his career with the $17,135 he collected for running away with Sunday's American 500 Grand National stock car race. It was his second victory in 15 starts, and ninth top ten finish in 1977.

"A.J. is a good friend of mine," Allison pointed out, "but I don't think he gave 100 per cent when he drove Hoss Ellington's car."

Ellington, the car owner, summed it up a little more critically: "A.J. runs U.S. Auto Club races more than NASCAR, and NASCAR is more competitive racing. You can mess around, miss gears and spin out and all that stuff in a USAC race and still win. A.J. couldn't do that in NASCAR."

Ellington's team runs only a partial schedule, Allison reminded, and that makes it harder for the team to stay competitive.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

A chicken egg begins inside a hen in a special, egg-organ, or ovary. Many tiny yolks are present in the ovary. When a yolk has grown as large as that seen in the fresh-laid egg, the yolk separates from the ovary and enters the egg passage, or oviduct, where the rest of the egg is formed. As the yolk moves through the oviduct, it is surrounded with several layers of egg albumen ("egg white"), which oozes from glands in the walls of the oviduct. Next, two very thin skins, or membranes, form around the egg. As the egg nears the end of the egg passage, it is covered with a coating made up chiefly of calcium, which hardens into the eggshell.

The egg is now ready to be laid. The egg is usually laid large-end-first. On an egg farm, the eggs are taken away as soon as they are laid, and the hen just keeps laying. On such a farm, an egg-laying chicken may lay more than 200 eggs a year.

The Immigrants'

A Fast maxi-mini series

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Television mini-series are getting longer and longer. If current plans come to pass, the TV version of Howard Fast's "The Immigrants" will have to be called a maxi-series. Or a maxi-mini-series. Universal has bought the best seller, and plan to make it into a 36-hour-long series.

But don't expect it next season. Fast says the deal is to do 36 hours on the trilogy he's writing. "The Immigrants" is only the first volume of that trilogy. He's finished the first draft of "The Second Generation," which will be Volume Two, but he hasn't even started the third one, yet. So it may be five years or so before this gets on the air.

He says when word of Universal's purchase first got out, it was reported as a million-dollar deal. And Fast immediately got calls from "every investment broker in California." They were all after his business. But he says the million-dollar deal has a lot of steps to it. The first option was only (only!) $30,000 and the million won't come, if it ever comes, until the studio picks up all the options, when all three books are done.

Fast says he won't have a hand in writing the script. He's done that. Six years ago, he says he wrote what he thought was his best work, almost a perfect novel. That was "The Hessian." But he says it didn't sell well, and that discouraged him. So he moved to California and turned to film writing. He wrote a few movies, some TV shows. He wrote a film biography of Sam Houston, which was dropped because it was too expensive. He wrote the first draft of the TV movie, "21 Hours At Munich," but CBS couldn't get a sponsor because "they said I was too rough on the Arabs." The next writer was kinder to the Arabs and it got on the air.

Whenever "The Immigrants" — a fascinating novel — is filmed, odds are that Sylvester Stallone will play the leading role, Dan Lavette. The part was made for him.

Most Hollywood biographies and autobiographies just skim the surface of the subject's life. They are about as revealing as a full-length mask.

That's why Evelyn Keyes' autobiography, "Scarlett O'Hara's Younger Sister," is a refreshing change. Maybe too refreshing. Anyhow, there is nothing bland about it. Evelyn, who was a beauty and a leading Hollywood personality and actress in the '40s and early '50s, tells all. About everybody.

"That's what I wanted to do," she says. "The other kind of Hollywood autobiography bores me as a reader, and I knew it would also bore me as a writer."

She talks about her four marriages — to John Huston and Artie Shaw, among others — and her many liaisons — four years with Mike Todd, among others. She gossips and chit-chats and spills beans and all that.

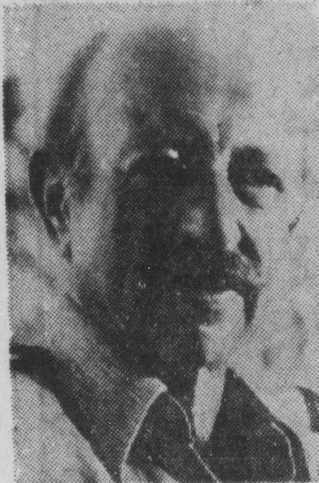

But she thinks it's more important than merely a book that tells all the dirt.

"I think there must be something better than that. Maybe a commune. Maybe something else. I don't know. But something different."

GET A HEARSE! — Two wolfmen will guard the hearse during the Halloween Haunt at Knott's Berry Farm Thursday through next Monday. Wolfman Jack will present his Shock 'n' Rock

Joyce Brothers Questions motives

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: A man in our neighborhood was arrested recently because of his association with a group involved in producing pornographic films featuring children. This is so abhorrent to us. My husband was so outraged, he was ready to take the law into his own hands. What kind of man would be involved in this kind of crime? What is wrong with him? What makes him that way? — R.R.

DEAR R.R.: Since I don't know the details of the case, I can't say anything about this individual. He may be interested strictly in the money and so immoral he can justify almost any action if it pays enough.

What kind of man gets pleasure or sexual excitement from the sexual exploitation of a child? Usually, he isn't fundamentally very different from the type who delights in seeing women exploited and maltreated. It is a difference in degree rather than kind.

The great majority of men attracted to this particular brand of pornography are men who feel powerless, but who have an extraordinary need for mastery and power. In fantasy, or in reality, they act out their sexual impulses through children, because they feel threatened by most adults. Children are less frightening to them. They're also aware that children are apt to view them as strong, powerful authority figures to be admired.

Often, such people are insecure in their sexual roles. Though they usually lead heterosexual lives, in many cases they are driven by fears of homosexuality. Almost all find it difficult to communicate or relate to women as equals. They need to dominate.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: Last week, my nephew was badly hurt in my brother's home. I haven't been able to say this to my brother but it was all a result of his passion for guns. His son thought the gun wasn't loaded. My mother, his wife and I have all pleaded with my brother to keep the guns locked up or to get rid of them altogether. I just can't understand why he feels so strongly about having them around. What is this love affair with guns? Why do some men have it while others don't? — S.V.

DEAR S.V.: How a man feels about guns is partly related to how he was brought up. In many sections of the U.S. having a gun is viewed as a symbol of masculinity. The gun is an extension of the man in the same way that a high-powered auto is. Guns seem to give certain insecure people a sense of security and self-esteem. They provide a kind of instant power. The weaker the man, physically and mentally, the more appealing this is.

Coming events

TOPS CA 1514, First Church of God, 1233 E. Kingsley Ave., 9:30 a.m.

POMONA VALLEY Golden Age Club, Church of the Brethren, 875 W. Orange Grove Ave., Pomona, 10 a.m.

HELIOTROPE Rebekah Lodge, Halloween event with hobo or Halloween costume, Hobo Stew, 6 p.m.; 11667 Monte Vista Ave., meeting 8 p.m.

RANCHO SAN JOSE Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, Assistance League Hall in Pomona, initiation, 8 p.m.

A California psychiatrist, Dr. Donald Newman, has observed that the process of escalation of weapons from fists, to tire chains, to knives, to guns is more than a progression in the ability to hurt someone. The gun allows the weakest to join the "superman club" just as the possession of atomic weapons makes nations members of a "super-power club."

Weak, immature, sexually insecure men seem to be more concerned with power and the symbols of masculinity. Such men are desperately afraid of the feminine side of themselves. This is unfortunate, for the men are depriving themselves of an opportunity to grow and expand.

Wedding betrothal forms here

The Progress Bulletin Family Section is happy to run the stories of engagements and weddings for residents of the valley.

Engagement and wedding forms are available at the newspaper office and are to be filled out for each announcement. The stories may be accompanied by a picture, at least wallet size of the bride-elect only for the engagement and a black and white picture of the bride only for the wedding story.

Engagement announcements are not run if the wedding is within six weeks. Wedding stories must be returned to the Family Section editor not later than two weeks after the wedding. Polaroid pictures and snapshots are not acceptable.

Moving heirs and heirlooms

CHICAGO (AP) — Whether children find a household move exciting or traumatic depends on the parents, says the National Institute of Certified Moving Consultants, which advises moving your children with the same care with which you move your family heirlooms.

Let the children become a part of the move, the group suggests. Give them responsibilities for planning, packing and helping according to their abilities. Talk and be open with them. Explain what will happen and why it is necessary to move.

Finally, be positive yourself. Your attitude rubs off on the children.
